Across America
Our Middle Kingdom
Knowing and Seeing
Don't Be a Texas Tick

By Arthur Brisbane

TRINIDAD, COLO., Jan. 15—This is written crossing the continent by a zigzag route from New York to Chicago on the New York Central Advance 20th Century, Chicago to Ash Fork, Ariz., on the Santa Fe Chief, next from Ash Fork by Fred Harvey's automobile, leaving at five in the morning, to Phoenix, stopping at Prescott on the way, 165 miles. Then, after the Western Shippers' and Growers' Conference, about the same distance by automobile to Nogales, interesting town with Mexico on one side of the main street, United States on the other. Then to Los Angeles by the Southern Pacific, up to San Francisco and back by a Northern route.

The trip across America and back is an interesting affair you have made it fifty or a hundred times as it was the first time.

It is a different and an independent United States out here near the Rocky Mountains.

On the front page of Bonfils' Denver Post no large type is devoted to any news except what happens in Colorado or in the big domain of central states covered by the Post.

Western newspapers are good newspapers and tell you everything that happens, once you get past the front page. But nothing that Mussolini can do, nothing that Lloyd George can say, nothing that Russia can suggest is as important to the "Pueblo Chieftain" as the fact that "Pueblo banks pick officers for new year." And in Denver the finding of Alice Lucille Humphreys, lost 13-year-old daughter of a millionaire, is bigger news than any steel merger.

Yesterday Mr. Coolidge said, and the young should remember it, "Knowing a little more about a subject under discussion than any one else on the floor (of the Legislature) will be the surest way to success." That's the Calvin Coolidge way and a good way. But also to REGIN to know more about everything than anybody else, without taking the trouble to know, is another road to success, much traveled.

This region to Bonfils and others that live in it is what the heart of China was to the emperor, "The Middle Kingdom."

It is a big country and a high country.

The Chief is just now rolling out of La Junta, 4,000 feet above sea level, going through wide, flat pla ns, nearly a mile high, stretching as far as you can see. In Denver, off to the north, the steps of the capitol building are exactly a mile above the ocean. On the right as you go west you see the deep shadows of mountain ranges, other thousands of feet high.

Cattle browse in fields of standing corn stalks or withered brown grass on the field, their backs humped up by the cold. The men, too, are patient and hardy out here. You see several of them standing 50 feet apart on the ice of a small stream, fishing through holes. And think of the fish in the dark, freezing waters below.

It is hard for steamheated flat dwellers to realize what life is on the average, hard also for sunbathers in Florida and for those that live in New Orleans and along the warm Gulf coast.

However, the fish wouldn't leave their icy water and the fishermen wouldn't leave their place on the ice even if you offered them "sun back" pajamas and a spot on the Miami sands. They like it here, like the cold, like the hardships, prefer coats lined with a sheepskin to sunback pajamas.

Every American should see all of this wide, beautiful country West, East, North and South, going by one railroad, and returning by another, and without fail making one trip through the Panama Canal.

The pessimist especially should see his country, from the giant trees of Washington and Oregon in the Northwest, to the palm trees and sand beaches of Florida.

A trip from the Atlantic to the Pacific means only three nights on the train now, and the comfort of modern travel is unbelievable, solid trains of steel cars running smoothly, with every comfort of a first class hotel and the additional pleasure of going slowly and seeing the world as you go.

You sympathize with the turtle because he cannot go fast. But at least he goes as far as he can.

You feel sorry for the Texas "tick" crushed from a cow, and unable in his whole lifetime to crawl more than two or three feet in search of another cow's leg to start in business again.

Witnesses Tell About the Real Estate Operations of Ex-Raider's Wife

Complete testimony in Garrett case on Page 14. Get each day's complete testimony in the 7 P. M. Edition of the Evening American.

Testimony that Mrs. Florence H. Garrett bought property and authorized construction to a total value of $50,500 was given at the Garrett trial today by two witnesses.

They were J. Edward Callinan, Newton realtor, and Patrick C. McMahon, Newton builder.

Other features of the trial were the testimony of two women clerical workers that young girls frequented the Hotel Ritz alone and with men, the appearance of Deputy Police Supt. James McDevitt on the stand, and a warning by the court to the jury not to listen to radio broadcasts mentioning the Garrett trial.

Resumption of the trial was delayed because of a conference of court and counsel over a Garrett parody sung by a Boston vaudeville performer and broadcast through a local station.

The taking of evidence against Oliver R. Garrett, his wife and Miss Lillian V. Hatch, charged with conspiracy to extort, from John F. Sullivan, Rits proprietor, continued after Judge Patrick M. Keating ascertained from the jury that none had heard the radio broadcast in question.

REAL ESTATE DEALS

Callinan testified that he sold the wife of the former liquor squad member property in Fayette st., Newton, for $12,000 and property in Trenton st., Newton, for $10,000, and land for $1600.

McMahon testified he built a garage on the Tremont st. land for $1100, a house at Hingham for $6700, a dairy barn and addition there for $17,000 and a garage on the Hingham property for $1200.

The women witnesses were Mrs.

The Bow mop of flaming hair was wildly afluff, after yesterday's harrowing experience in court. The famous Bow eyes glittered with temper. The famous Bow voice was shrill.

"Gosh, I'm tired. Gimme a cigarette, somebody. This court baloney makes me sick."

The "it" girl clapped the Paris hat that she held in her hand atop her bristling titian hair where it rested at a decidedly rakish angle, lit the proffered cigarette and sank down in one of Dep. Dist. Atty. Clarke's easiest chairs.

"I didn't want to dot it," she said, "messin' up Bow and Sell a lot of stuff an Daisy. I felt like a heel, honest I did. But whats girl gonna do? Let a nasty little blonde do her out of a ratin money and get away with it? Not me, see.

WALSH WARNS OF 'SPY' PLAN

Washington, Jan. 15—The Howell bill, providing drastic prohibition enforcement for the nation's capital, was assailed today by Senator David I. Walsh, Democrat, of Massachusetts, as a plan to set up a "spy system."

Walsh praised efforts of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization, to defeat the bill.

"This sort of legislation," said Walsh, "is an invasion of personal rights that I cannot support.

"It would take an army of police and other officials to enforce it and it would mean the creation of a group of busybody officials and the setting up of a spy system for enforcing the law."

The Howell bill supplementing the National Prohibition Act for the District of Columbia would make all policemen of the city prohibition agents, whereas now only 38 of the 1500 officers are so qualified. It would permit search warrants for a dwelling upon evidence that liquor had been taken into the dwelling for purpose of sale.

It would also permit a search warrant for a dwelling in which it was believed still was operating. Search warrants under the national law for a dwelling may be issued only on evidence of a sale.

SLIGHT GAIN REPORTED IN CONDITION OF Y D 'DADDY'

Doctors More Hopeful of Result of an Emergency Intestinal Operation

Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, beloved "daddy" of the Yankee Division, is battling death after an emergency operation for an intestinal obstruction and is waging the greatest fight of his career.

The condition was announced as critical today at the Phillips House of the Massachusetts General Hospital, where the operation was performed early this morning.

After a night under oxygen he awoke cheerful. Dr. Richard H. Miller, who operated at the bedside, is somewhat more optimistic than he was early in the day, but his word is that the general was still gravely ill.

CALLS AND FLOWERS

Scores of telephone calls were received at the hospital inquiring about his condition, and numerous baskets of flowers arrived for the sick room.

Of many who called in person, including several distinguished citizens, the only one to be admitted to the general's room was Miss Kay Hyatt, daughter of Col. John Hyatt, who was Gen. Edward's aide during the war.

Upon leaving the hospital this afternoon she gave the latest account of the general's condition, saying:

DOCTOR MORE HOPEFUL

"I had a nice long chat with him. He is fairly cheerful and apparently is doing as well as could be expected.

"Dr. Miller feels a lot better about him than he did this morning. He thinks the general is doing a little better than holding his own, although he is still a very sick man."

This forenoon Dr. Miller issued the first definite statement on the patient's condition, when he said:

"Gen Edwards is a very sick man. The chances are about 50-50 for his recovery. The next three days will tell the story.

"I don't like to be too pessimistic because it might get back to the general, but that's the way it stands now.

CAN'T BE SEEN.

"He was operated on for an intestinal obstruction and is at present sleeping. No one can see him. I am remaining with him."

At noon the following statement was made at the hospital:

"There has been no decided change in the condition of Gen. Edwards. He is still considered a pretty sick man.

ACTIONS OF RITZ GIRLS DESCRIBED BY TWO WOMEN WITNESSES

INTRODUCED TO MEN BY WAITERS

Mabel S. Worcester of the Franklin Square House and Miss Florence H. Luscomb, secretary of a state social welfare organization. Both said they visited the Ritz in 1928.

GIRLS AT RITZ

Miss Luscomb said she was "terribly impressed" by the number of young girls who went there alone, she saw a dozen, she said, and some were in their "low teens." She saw a police sergeant in uniform there at the time, she said. Mrs. Worcester observed similar conditions but thought the girls were between 22 and 26.

Deputy McDevitt took the stand to identify signatures of fake names on police documents, as did Capt. John McGrath of division 3.

Bob Hall, doing an act at a local theater, was summoned before Dist. Atty. Foley before trial resumed after a police stenographer and two sergeants had "listened in" on a parody he sang.

After he was questioned, Asst. Dist. Atty. Frederick T. Doyle and defense attorneys, Daniel J. Gallagher and Herbert F. Callahan, conferred with Judge Keating in the lobby.

JURY WARNED

Later Judge Keating warned the jurors not to listen to any radio broadcast mentioning the trial. It was the first such warning issued in a Massachusetts court. He also warned them again not to read the newspapers.

Of her visit to the Ritz on Feb. 29, 1928, Mrs. Worcester said:

"I went into the rathskeller of the Ritz about 10:30 that evening. I saw evidence of drinking there. There were bottles on the floor under some of the tables containing liquids of different colors, and from time to time waiters would pour the liquor from the bottles into glasses on the tables.

"I saw girls come in there alone, paused around from one man to another for dances. There was considerable drinking all the time I was there. I saw men and women matched up and they would withdraw and go upstairs."

SERGEANT THERE

Under cross-examination by Atty. Callahan she said she had a good deal of introducing by waiters of girls to men. She thought there were two women under arrest. Usually before a waiter introduced a girl to a man he conferred with the girl, she said.

The ages of the girls she placed at from 22 to 26 but thought one was younger.

"We saw considerable drinking going on. That is, we saw what we considered to be drinking. We noticed a number of men and girls present in the dining room. They had flasks."

"Sometime after 11:30 p. m. a police sergeant in uniform came to the door. With him was a man in plain clothes. He made himself very conspicuous as he remained in the door for some time.

GIRLS IN TEENS

"We were terribly impressed by the number of young girls who came into the room unaccompanied. We noticed one of the girls get up from a booth which she occupied and go to a table where there was a man."

She told of one girl in a green dress who was "loud and shrill and had to steady herself."

Cross-examined by Callahan she said some of the girls were in their "low teens" and about a dozen of them were alone.

Deputy Supt. McDevitt did the same. Then under cross-examination by Callahan told of seeking Garrett at the Franklin home of his wife as the result of a newspaper story.

SALE OF HOUSE

Callinan said he knew the defendants and first met Miss Hatch at 197 Tremont st., Newton. Mrs. Garrett twice called on him for rent he was collecting for her, he said, and when Doyle asked what she said, replied:

"I think she said Mr. Garrett had sent her for the rent."

Then, in answer to questions admitted over objection of defense counsel, he testified that he sold the property at 197 Tremont st., Newton, to Mrs. Garrett for $10,900. The property, he said, was deeded to Everett Redden, her father. A $100 deposit was first paid, $1400 in cash at the time of transfer, and there were first and second mortgages.

MORTGAGE PAID

The witness testified the second mortgage was paid off on May 5, 1928. Doyle asked Atty. Callahan to produce the deeds and when Callahan replied that he was not counsel for the women, Doyle said:

"You were the counsel of record at the time the deed was turned over to you."

"Well, I haven't got it," said Garrett's lawyer.

Callinan testified that Mrs. Garrett bought a piece of vacant land adjoining the Tremont st. property for $1600 and that he visited some Hingham property of Mrs. Garrett, handling insurance on it. He also sold property in Fayette st., Newton, to her for $12,000; he sold it for her for $13,300, he said.

$1100 GARAGE

McMahon testified he built a garage for Mrs. Garrett on the Tremont st. vacant lot for $1100 and that he was paid "eventually" $100, $200, $300 or so at a time, some times in cash, some times by check.

He testified that some time after the garage was built, Mrs. Garrett told him she wanted to build a home for her mother and father in Hingham. He built it for $6700, he said.

Then he built the barn for the dairy farm at Hingham for between $11,00 and $12,000, and later an addition to it for between $6,000 and $6,500, when Mrs. Garrett said "the stock was increasing so." He repaired a small cottage on the lot for $200 and built a garage there for $1200.

Hitler Frowns on Coalition Plan

Berlin, Jan. 15—When Hitler rules, he'll rule alone. There won't be any sharing of power.

That is the notice which the Voelkischer Beobachter, chief Hitler's official organ, serves on all those parties and politicians who are driving toward a government coalition of the Right, to include Hitler's National Socialists. Such a coalition is advocated by a majority of German business leaders and practically all the parties right of the Catholic center.

5 MILLION RUM RING BROKEN

New York, Jan. 15 (US)—A $5,000,000 mail order liquor business, whose customers extended throughout the country and included prominent persons, has been smashed, federal executives said today, with the arrest of two men and a woman in a Times sq. office.

For three years, according to Chief Agent H. J. Simmons of the Justice Department, this ring had been sending large and small bulk quantities of liquor by express and freight throughout the country in packages marked "fragile," "glass" and "handle carefully."

LAMPOON WON'T APOLOGIZE FOR CARTOON

College Authorities Will Make No Move of Censure Over Caricature

The Harvard Lampoon will make no apologies for its cartoon depicting the university's former scrubwomen in a Bacchanalian revel on the money given them by Corliss Lamont and other Harvard Alumni at Christmas, its editor, Paul Brooks, '31, stated today.

University authorities likewise promised no action on the cartoon which stirred Mayor Russell of Cambridge and leading citizens to protest against "the worst insult ever to appear in a college paper."

Rev. N. C. Fetter in charge of Greater Boston students for the Baptist church, scored the cartoon as an unethical way of getting publicity for the Lampoon.

"If put to a vote of the student body this cartoon would never have been published," Rev. Mr. Fetter declared. "I know students pretty well and I am sure that the man who drew this cartoon thought it was smart or funny, and I imagine the editors felt that it would arouse comment. There is no accounting for some people's sense of humor, as we noted when the Tech publication a year ago put out vile issues on sex to sell the paper."

The Harvard Crimson today carries an editorial entitled "Strictly Dishonorable," in which it charges that the Lampoon used the cartoon to gain publicity.

"The Harvard Lampoon, humorous undergraduate periodical, has once again blown itself in the public eye," the editorial says. "The initiated know that the avowed intention of comedy therein is to cause a suggestive wink, but the Boston and Cambridge public have frequently found occasion to look upon the products with horror.

"Either because of an astounding innocence or a lurking diabolic sense of publicity, the Lampoon editors have succeeded in acquiring quite a facility in arousing public feeling. A Boston paper, with Mayor Russell as its lead-off man, gave various citizens an opportunity to brand the ill-advised drawing with telling marks of their disapproval."

2 FREED IN 'BABY VOLSTEAD' TEST

Two men won freedom in Federal Court today when Commissioner Jenney confirmed the ruling of Atty.-Gen. Warner that police arrests in Massachusetts for transporting liquor must confirm to federal law.

Daniel C. Shea and Oliver Le Roche, both of St. Albans, Vt., arrested by Cambridge police while transporting liquor, were found not guilty by Commissioner Jenney.

After their arrest the men were arraigned in East Cambridge district court charged with keeping and exposing liquor for sale.

Judge Arthur P. Stone, who heard the case, declined jurisdiction and ordered Shea and Le Roche sent to Federal court, where their arraignment followed on charges of transporting liquor.

Commissioner Jenney, in finding them not guilty, ruled that since the abolition of the Baby Volstead Act, State officers in arresting for transporting liquor must do so according to Federal law.

WIRE-TAPPING BY DRY AGENTS TO BE PROBED

House Expenditures Committee Orders Inquiry to Be Begun on Jan. 29

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The House Expenditures committee decided today to investigate telephone and telegraph wire tapping by prohibition bureau agents.

A motion to that effect by Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, a prohibition opponent, to "provide a thorough investigation of the prohibition bureau's practice of tapping telephone and telegraph wires" was adopted.

Chairman Williamson said he expected the investigation to begin January 29.

LAWFUL PURPOSES ONLY

Schafer said Attorney General Mitchell had promised wires would be tapped for lawful purposes only. At the last hearings on appropriations for the prohibition bureau, he said, prohibition director Woodcock testified wire tapping had been permitted since the Supreme court held it was lawful.

"The Supreme Court decision was returned on a 5 to 4 vote and was not on the legality of wire tapping, but on the admissibility of evidence obtained in that manner," Schafer said.

He also quoted testimony last year by J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Department of Justice Bureau of Investigation, that all persons who tapped wires would be dismissed.

Schafer added a regulation to that effect had been issued but not enforced.

QUIZZED BY TINKHAM

Woodcock has testified that he felt dry agents were at liberty to tap wires involved in illegal use.

"I have no qualms at all about that," Woodcock said. "I think the telephone and telegraph franchises are given for the transaction of lawful business and the promotion of lawful commerce. I do not think the unlawful have any right to use them with impunity."

Asked by Rep. Tinkham, (R.), Mass., how many wires had been tapped by his agents since last July 1, Woodcock declined to reply, saying he believed this was "one bit of information that is highly confidential."

The Woodcock composition to be heard then are titled "Four Musical Impressions" and are "Chinese Magic," "The Unknown Soldier" (Lamento), "Souvenir de Montmartre" and "Tartar Dance." They will be the only American composition in the two-hour concert.

said about his condition as yet, except that he is very sick, but we hope that he is going to recover."

Dr. Robey advised his removal from his estate, "Donerovng," in Westwood, to the hospital after the general failed to respond to treatment.

AGE AGAINST HIM

Gen. Edwards' age—he is 71—is against him in his fight for life.

The operation was performed under a local anaesthetic and the general stood it remarkably well.

When informed it was over, he said with a smile:

"Who's got a cigarette, boys?"

When one was given him, he smoked it contentedly and considerably encouraged the doctors by his attitude. Both before and immediately after the ordeal he joked with those around him.

His pulse was normal after the operation and there was no alarming rise in temperature, and this was another encouraging sign, according to the physicians, but they did not try to hide the fact that the operation was a dangerous one.

The local anaesthetic was decided upon after a consultation because of the fear of a heart attack.

If the war-time leader of the Yankee Division pulls through it will be due chiefly to his indomitable courage and splendid physique, the result of his active career, the doctors said, explaining that few men of his age could have stood the emergency operation so well.

RESTING COMFORTABLY

Col. C. R. Hurd of Milton, a cousin, called at the hospital today and asked to see the general. He was referred to the supervisor who informed him of the orders, that no one could go to the bedside for the present.

Col. Hyatt's daughter carried to the sick room a large bouquet of flowers.

Gen. Escobar Jailed As Echo of Revolution

Montreal, Jan. 15 (AP)—Jail bars today separated Gen. Jose Gonzales Escobar from the wife, once an 18 Peso prize beauty, with whom he had just effected a reconciliation.

His arrest was an echo of the unsuccessful revolution he led against the Mexican government in 1929 and was brought about by the attorney who came from El Paso to represent Senora Conception Goeshier Escobar in an annulment action.

The annulment proceedings were dropped when Escobar made up with his wife. The attorney then obtained a warrant for the general's arrest on a charge of obtaining goods under false pretenses.

Attorneys for Escobar said the goods were purchased as supplies for the revolutionary army.

British War Ace Freed in Charges by Wife

New York, Jan. 15—Maj. Geoffrey H. Bonnell, British war ace, yesterday returned to his new wife, the former Mrs. Dorothy Fargo, after several days of leisure spent in the county jail at West Thirty-seventh st., tenanted mostly by husbands with alimony ailments.

But such was not the dashing major's plight. He had been sent there on charges of bigamy by his first wife, Mrs. Florence G. Bonnell, that she had given more than $125,000 with which to buy partnership in a brokerage house.

Thereafter, said the first Mrs. Bonnell, she had discovered letters and telegrams from the then Mrs. Fargo in her husband's trunk.

WET GOVERNORS BRING DISMAY TO DRY BLOC IN CONGRESS

BITTER FIGHT SEEN IN 1932 CONVENTION

Majority of Democratic De'egates Expected to Favor "Ditching" Dry Laws

By GEORGE R. HOLMES
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 15—Dry Democrats in Congress—and there are a lot of them—have looked with increasing dismay since the first of the year upon the steady succession of Democratic Governors who are advocating repeal of prohibition in their inaugural addresses.

The first two weeks of January have seen four Democratic governors take the oath of office and do the next breath declare against prohibition—Roosevelt in New York, Cross in Connecticut, Ely in Massachusetts and Ritchie in Maryland. In all except Ritchie, their policy represents conversion.

BATTLE FOR PRINCIPLES.

What this portends for the next Democratic national convention easily may be imagined. The senators from these states are also opposed to prohibition, as are the most of the congressmen. They will control their delegations to the next national convention and they will go to that convention to battle for their principles.

These four states alone—New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts, and Maryland—will have a bloc of some 154 delegates in the next convention. When it is considered that the Democratic party in New Jersey, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Rhode Island, Washington, Nevada, Delaware, Louisiana, and to some extent Missouri, is preponderantly wet, either in party platform or leadership, the enormity of what the drys are up against becomes more apparent.

WET DELEGATE

Thus it would perhaps be not too much to say—and it is being freely said in Democratic quarters here—that when the delegates to the next Democratic national convention assemble in June of 1932 a majority of them, or very close to it, will be outspokenly in favor of ditching prohibition in platform and candidate.

Moreover, every Democrat, who at this time can be considered a formidable candidate for the nomination, with the sole exception of Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, is also against prohibition.

ISSUE OF CAMPAIGN

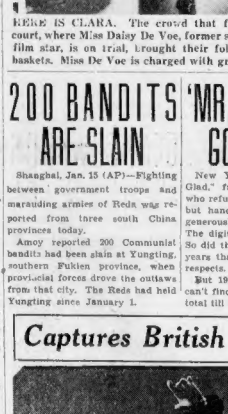
It is perfectly apparent, however, that if the messages and addresses of the governors of the states, whether Republican or Democratic, can be taken as any criterion, the issues of the presidential campaign of 1932 will feature prohibition, power control and probably what is more important than all the others—the solution of the economic problem to the end that jobs be found for the estimated 4,000,000 to 5,000,000 persons now without them.

'Confession' of Clara Bow's Love-Letter-Burning Secretary Thrilled and Startled All Filmland

PERRY RICHMAN

GARY COOPER

IN THE ALLEGED CONFESSION of Miss Daisy Devoe, consisting of thousands of words, all in stenographic notes, Miss De Voe, secretary to the picturesque film star, tells how she had burned hundreds of love letters, because her personal opinion was that they would get Clara Bow in trouble. Included in the letters were love notes from Harry Richman, New York night club owner, who, on numerous occasions was reported engaged to Miss Bow. There were several letters from Gary Cooper. Of these, Miss De Voe is quoted as saying, "I wouldn't have them laying around the house." We show you pictures of Clara Bow and Harry Richman and Miss Bow with Gary Cooper. (I. N. R. photo.)



HERE IS CLARA. The crowd that filed into Los Angeles court, where Miss Daisy De Voe, former secretary of Clara Bow, film star, is on trial, brought their folding chairs and lunch baskets. Miss De Voe is charged with grand larceny.

happened. I tell you, you could knocked me flat with a feather!

"'Course we had our ups and downs and sometimes I'd square away and sorta take a poke at her, feeling like, but she never took me serious.

"And now they've got me down in court mixed up in all this hooey.

"SHE FEELS SO BAD

"Of course, I feel bad telling on her, and her sitting there all pathetic, looking at me as if to say, 'Clara ,how could you?'

"Sure, I feel bad. Honest, I feel sorta sick at my stomach, and I get all nervous and the first thing you know, I'm bawling like a dumb baby.

"Gosh, I don't like to see anybody in a jam, see? But I could I stand by like a fish and let her make a sap outta me? I ask you?"

She was now crying like a baby again.

"I know I'm a sap. But she was my pal, see? And I just can't stop feeling h-h-hard about her like you turn off a w-w-water p-p-pipe, see?

HIGHLIGHTS OF DAY

Briefly, they were:

1—The charge that Miss De Voe demanded $125,000 as the price of silence concerning the "things I know" about the screen star.

2—The statement to the district attorney's office by the erstwhile secretary that she didn't notify her employer that she was quitting because "Miss Bow was drunk. If I had gotten into an argument with her she would have tried to kill me, because she tried it once before."

3—Testimony by Rex Bell, said to be Clara's "boy friend," of the recovery from Miss De Voe of a suit case full of letters and telegrams received by the actress over a period of several years.

4—Miss De Voe's statement that she had burned two drawers drawers full of love epistles to her employer because she thought no good might come of having them around the house.

5—The statement that Miss De Voe had given some of Clara's letters to her own "boy friend," who failed to follow her order to destroy them.

6—Miss De Voe's alleged admission in the statement that she had diverted $35,000 of Clara's money to her own use.

TELLS OF "SHAKEDOWN"

Miss Bow had been recalled to the witness stand by Deputy Dist. Atty. Dave Clark to go over portions of the testimony she gave yesterday and to discuss the alleged attempt by Miss De Voe to "shake her down" to the tune of $125,000.

She was calm at first, but her emotions rose visibly as she took up the recitation regarding her final meeting with her former companion. She said at some time after November 1 last, Daisy De Voe came to her house and in the presence of Rex Bell, demanded that she be restored to her former position.

"'Are you kidding me?' I asked Daisy. 'No' she said. 'I've got some letters and telegrams that don't do any good at all if I turn them over to the papers,' said Daisy. 'I want my job back.'" Miss Bow testified.

FLOOD OF TEARS

At this point, Clara burst into tears and could not resume her testimony for several minutes. She managed finally to control herself and her words, punctuated by sobs, came slowly.

"I asked Daisy—I asked, 'and you're not kidding me? And you went up to W. I. Gilbert (Clara's attorney), and said I had to pay you $125,000. Isn't it true, Daisy, that you're trying to shake me down for $125,000?'" the actress testified she asked.

Then seized by another emotional outburst, the famous "It" girl sobbed openly. Between sobs, however, she managed to blurt out an apology to the crowded courtroom.

"She was my friend—my best friend—my best friend in the world. I'm sorry to be crying but I can't help it. I can't help it," she sobbed.

"IT" GIRL FLARES UP

Miss Bow then fished into her pocketbook and brought out a powder puff to remove the traces of her tears. A little later, however, under cross-examination by Atty. Nathan Freedman, representing Miss De Voe, the actress' tears gave place to fleeting anger. The attorney questioned her regarding 85 impassioned love missives from "boy friends." Those letters and telegrams presumably had been destroyed by Rex Bell.

"Rex Bell is your private secretary, is he not?" Atty. Freedman asked.

"No, he is not!" came in a flash from the actress.

"Does he live on Bedford drive?" she was questioned.

"No, he does not! How dare you?" flung back Miss Bow.

"Is he in your employ?" the attorney kept on.

"No, he is not," came the swift answers once more. "It's been rumored in the papers he is, but it's untrue and you know it."

BELL ON STAND

Rex Bell was also on the stand for a brief time to testify regarding the recovery from Miss De Voe of a suitcase full of letters and telegrams received by Miss Bow. Also he identified 155K checks which were drawn over a period of 21 months by both Miss De Voe and Miss Bow.

Rex also identified a number of the burning love telegrams he sent to Clara. Only one of these, however, was read. It began with "Dearest Sweetheart," and ended with "Darling baby, I do miss you."

W. I. Gilbert, attorney for Clara was one of the final witnesses About November 3, he said, Miss De Voe came to him and told him that she had some papers of Clara's and neither Clara nor anyone else could get them unless Clara paid.

"I said to her, 'How much do you want?'" Gilbert testified. "And she said, '$125,000 and not a damn nickel less.'"

Sizzling Love Notes to Clara

Torrid love messages that came to the flame-haired Clara Bow in a period of some two years from three of her "boy friends"—presumably Dr. Edward Pierson, Harry Richman and Rex Bell—are now in the court records and public property. Here are three good samples of what a "redhead" can do to a man:

Be a Good Girl

Hollywood, Oct. 18, 1929.

Mark Hopkins Hotel, San Francisco:

Sweetheart—So happy you arrived safe. Don't tire yourself out with unnecessary interviews and don't talk too much on your personal appearances at the theater. The less said on these occasions and leaving them wanting more is always the best policy.

Be a good girl and don't stay out too late with the boys and don't forget to let me know if you stay. Miss you very much, darling, and will anxiously be waiting your return Sunday. All of San Francisco is not large enough to hold the love I have for you.

Captures British Ice Title

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—Maribel Vinson, 19-year-old daughter of T. M. Vinson, a Boston lawyer, spun across the ice of the fashionable London rink this afternoon to win the gold medal of Great Britain's National Skating Association.

She was the first American since the war to win Britain's premier skating prize.

She dazzled with varitions of fancy skating, a dizzy speed and exquisite gracefulness, finishing with an average of 302.8 out of a possible 360 points. After this there was a display of free style skating in which Miss Vinson scored 9.5 out of a possible 12.

Now she is going to St. Moritz to look over the rivals she will meet next month in the international competition.

'MR. GLAD' SEES GOOD TIMES

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—"Mr. Glad," friend of the unemployed, who refuses to reveal his real name, but hands out nickels and dimes generously, has an optimistic tip. The digits of 1930 added up to 13. So did those of 1903, 1912 and 1921, years that were like 1930 in some respects.

But 1931 adds up to 14 and he can't find another year with a jinx total till 2029.

And the Farmers Answer Bawl for Bawl

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Letter written by relieved farmer to Congress:

"To those whom it may disconcert: Just wrote to our congressman, who is an old frenny of mine, and told him he didn't have to worry about that relief.

"Things is tighter than a rope at a lynching. We burned the barn down to get rid of the mice. The cows ain't mooing any more. They is broadcasting like wolves.

"Just went through the pockets of the scarecrow to see if he was holding out on us.

"The old hoss is working up a fine case of suspended animation and I don't want anybody to spoil it.

Our hen laid the first egg in 16 weeks. And that blew away before we could get to it.

"Farmer next door and me have a good arrangement for spring. We are going to plow each other under.

Tried to borrow a dime off the village banker. But he beat me to it.

"It ain't true that the coyotes have turned vegetarian. There ain't any vegetables.

"The wife don't shake the tablecloth out of the backdoor any more. We bell it down for sopp.

"So you can hold off that relief for another week or so and make it a military funeral.

FINANCE WIZARD FACES PROBE

Belvidere, Ill., Jan. 15 (AP)—Albert W. Benham is a financial prophet honored in his own home town, reputedly paying interest rate of 20 to 50 per cent on the life savings of neighbors who knew him as an obscure shipping clerk during most of his 45 years.

Every Monday they gather in Benham's office to give him their wages and savings, receive his short-time judgment notes as security or collect their interest at double or triple the usual rates.

Omar H. Wright, president of the Second National Bank here, asked an investigation of Benham's affairs. It was said Benham's financing scheme had caused withdrawals of $310,000 from banks.

State's Attorney A. J. Strom of Boone County interviewed Benham and then said the grand jury would look into his affairs Jan. 26. He added that the State's attorney of Winnebago County would bring the Blackhawk Finance Co., recently organized by Benham in nearby Rockford, before the county grand jury there today.

"I'm being investigated," Benham, a bald, robust man with a healthy manner, said today, "but I don't mind. Other investigators became customers. More money comes in. There's no law against borrowing money. Six per cent interest is all I promise. When I deliver more that is the customer's good luck."

Man Relieved in Hiccough Attack

Worcester, Jan. 15—The hiccough attack of Wilfred O. Labrie, clerk to Mayor O'Hara, was reduced to intermittent attacks today after a continuous spell of 104 hours was stopped last night.

Labrie is at Louis Pasteur hospital. Doctors said the spells of relief give the patient needed sleep and predict they will conquer the malady in a few days.

Rhode Island Court Suspends Lawyer

Providence, R. I., Jan. 15—Augustine T. L. Ledwidge of Westerly has been suspended from practicing as an attorney until further order of the Rhode Island Supreme court, as a result of complaint by Beppo Boumenot of Allston, Mass., who declared he had given Ledwidge $485 to pay creditors in 1927 and that Ledwidge had not paid them.

Hearst Editorial Is Ordered Printed in Congress Record

Washington, Jan. 15—The leading editorial on the power commission fight, published in the Hearst newspapers yesterday, was ordered printed in the Congressional Record.

In moving that it be printed, Senator Wheeler (D.) of Montana quoted with approval its title, "Will the Senate Defend the Rights of the Public?" and its proposal that appropriations for the commissioners' salaries be cut off."

LUCAS APOLOGY 'ON CONDITION'

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Alfred E. Smith had a reply today from Robert H. Lucas. It contained a conditional offer of the apology the former Democratic presidential candidate demanded of the executive director of the Republican national committee.

Smith asked apology from the Republican committee for "permitting" Lucas to distribute a barroom cartoon, which, he said, contained a quotation attributed to him which he had not made.

Lucas issued a statement last night, saying he would apologize for sending out a cartoon representing Smith and Chairman Raskob of the Democratic national committee as vets if Smith would announce he now favored prohibition.

The Republican official asked, also, whether Smith and Raskob were considering

"Apologizing to the American people for the action of Governor Smith's hand-picked chairman, Mr. Raskob, in subsidizing with large sums of money an organized campaign extending over more than a year to misrepresent and smear the President of the United States."

English Laborite Predicts New War

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—Commander J. M. Kenworthy, Labor member of Parliament, declared today that another European war was inevitable unless the general disarmament conference, to be held some time next year, is successful. For the success of the conference, he said, the age-old problem of the freedom of the seas must be discussed, with Great Britain and the United States as leading naval powers.

Baldwin Gives Up Fortune to Bolster His Stock

Birmingham, Eng., Jan. 15 (AP)—Former Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin has revealed here that a large part of his personal fortune had been dissipated because he had kept it in the British iron trade.

Shares which were worth £3 (about $14.60) when he became premier in 1923, he said, were worth 20 pence (40 cents) now.

"It may have been bad business on my part," Mr. Baldwin said, "but when you have an old name in a business against which nothing ever has been said, and when you know the public comes into the business on the strength of that name, it is an impossibility to throw your shares on the market knowing that in all human probability the loss will fall on them, not you."

The former Premier's ancestors were in the iron trade in the time of Charles II.

INDIA'S FUTURE UP TO NATIVES

London, Jan. 15 (AP)—India's future as a self-government dominion of the British empire depends upon the Indians themselves, Lord Chancellor Sankey today told delegates to the round table conference, but if the delegates trample upon the sprouts so carefully developed in the last six weeks the tree of independence may never mature.

"That is the message I want you to take back to India," he said, "and it is worth your while to come here for it."

He was talking to a conference still split over the age-old Hindu-Moslem issue and he told its members there would still be many points left open for discussion after the Indian princes go home.

Representatives of the Sikh minority in the Punjab, comprising only 11 per cent of the population of that province, threatened today to blast the agreement which Moslems and Hindus at the Round Table conference here had reached.

The demands of the Sikhs is for representation of 24 per cent of the seats in the Punjab Legislature, against the 11 per cent of the population which they comprise.

Senator Stands in Line for Soup to Check Situation

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—As far as Senator Thomas of Oklahoma is concerned, New York city is handling its unemployed just right.

He has checked up on the matter, too. During the Christmas holidays he stood in a soup line in Gotham and received his share of food.

"No one challenged my right to be there," he told the Senate. "I was handed two or three slices of old white bread and passed on to another place where I was given some thick yellow soup."

He added he had worn his usual clothes, although most of the other men in line were laborer's garments.

Stt. Lawrence River Power Plan Backed

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 15 (INS)—Governor Roosevelt's plan for state development of the hydro-electric resources of the St. Lawrence river to provide cheaper rates for industrie sand homes was recommended in a report today by a commission.

If the commission's report is approved by the legislature and negotiations with Canada and the federal government are successfully consummated, the dam and power plant will be constructed on the St. Lawrence near Massena Point at a cost of $172,000,000 to develop 2,200,000 horsepower.

HEARST INVITED TO SPEAK

San Francisco, Jan. 15 (US)—William Randolph Hearst has been invited by State Commdr. John J. Hayes of the Disabled American veterans of the Word War to deliver the principal address at a civic reception and banquet here next Sunday night, in honor of National Commander-in-Chief Capt. Herman H. Weimer of Chicago, who is to arrive here tomorrow evening for a four-day visit to this city and the bay district.

Saturday morning Mayor Rossi will extend a civic welcome to Capt. Weimer and National Adjutant Corbly in the City Hall.

GANGSTERS HIT HARD BY LAW

Harassed by the Government's campaign against income tax violators, by prosecution of old charges, and by gangland bullets, the city's "public enemy" list of "active" members has been steadily decreasing since its issuance last April.

Since the list was published almost all of the original 28 "enemies" have felt the wrath of the law in one form or another. Ralp's Capone, brother of Al Capone, is under sentence for income tax violations and others are awaiting trial on various charges.

Three have fallen before the gunfire of their gangland opponents.

The latest of the "public enemies" to get into close contact with the law was Terry Druggan, beer baron. Druggan was sentenced yesterday to a year in jail for contempt when he came before Judge John H. Lyle. Later he was released on bond by another judge.

Marines' Proud Eagle Is a 'Holy Chicken' to the Chinese

The quartermaster of the 4th Regiment, U. S. Marines, now stationed in China, scratched his head when he read this bill. Explanation was soon forthcoming from his Chinese clerk.

The lectern from the Marines' chapel had been sent out for refurbishing. To the Chinese the proud American eagle was nothing more than a humble chicken, and since it came from a church it must be holy.

19 FLEE BLAZE IN GLOUCESTER

Gloucester, Jan. 15—Nineteen persons, including 13 small children, were driven to the street in their night clothing and suffered frost-bites, when a fire broke out on the first floor of a three-story wooden dwelling at 125 Rogers st., shortly before 3 a. m. today.

Prompt work on the part of Police Sergt. Edmund Cronin, who sent in an alarm and then sent a squad of officers to the scene, prevented any of the occupants from being seriously injured.

According to police the fire was caused by hot ashes in the rear of the home of Philip Loicono and spread rapidly, filling all three floors with heavy smoke.

Many Already Filing Federal Income Tax Returns

The mailing of over half a million Federal income tax blanks to Massachusetts taxpayers who filed returns last year has resulted in increased activity at the office of Thomas W. White, U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue, 22 Pearl st.

Within the past week hundreds of taxpayers have availed themselves of the opportunity to file their returns early, thus avoiding the congestion always in evidence around March 15, the final filing date.

There will be an increase in the normal tax rates this year over the rates for 1929, when Congress, by joint resolution, reduced the rates 1 per cent for that year only. The rates of normal taxe for the calendar year 1930 are the same as appear on the blank itself, namely 1 per cent on the first $4000, 2 per cent on the second $4000 and 5 per cent on the remainder of the taxable income. The corporation tax has also been restored to the old 12 per cent rate.

LA FOLLETTE PLANS BIG AID FOR JOBLESS

Madison, Wis., Jan. 15 (INS)—Philip Fox La Follette, youngest member of the family to carry on the La Follette tradition in Wisconsin politics, in his first gubernatorial address today advanced a program designed to provide immediate employment for 10,000 men and to pave the way for a state-wide publicly owned power system.

With an apparent progressive Republican majority in both houses, the legislature is expected to react favorably to the new governor's message.

Gov. LaFollette's plan for unemployment relief is to eliminate approximately 90 grade crossings throughout Wisconsin this year, a program tripling the amount of this kind of construction performed in other years.

PUBLIC POWER SYSTEM

"I am convinced," he said, "that the most immediate practicable method (to bolster employment) is an emergency highway measure to provide for a grade crossing abolition program . . . This plan would open the way to the earliest possible beginning of the state-wide highway program this spring."

Among the outstanding recommendations of the address were:

1. Adoption of a constitutional amendment authorizing the state to provide, if it so desires, a state-wide publicly-owned power system.

2. Adoption of a constitutional amendment providing that municipally-owned utilities may be financed by mortgage bonds, instead of through the general municipal borrowing powers.

3. Establishment of the initiative and referendum in legislation, with proper safeguards to overcome the power of a group that may establish itself with vested interests and beyond the reach of an ordinary election.

REALTY TAX RELIEF

4. Modernization of the corrupt practices act to require candidates to accept responsibility for the actions of those who participate in their campaigns.

5. Tightening of the law against the use of injunctions in labor disputes.

6. Passage of legislation relieving the tax burden on real estate by shifting some portion of the burden "to those with large incomes."

Wisconsin's task of meeting the employment situation has been increased by the lack of leadership in the Hoover administration, Governor La Follette declared.

Nation's Sweet Tooth Bigger and Sweeter

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The national sweet tooth is growing bigger and sweeter. Those who stuff themselves with candy bars, bonbons and what not, ate 12.98 pounds for each man, woman and child in the country in 1930. That was 96-hundredths of a pound more apiece than was eaten for each man, woman and child the year before.

Steamer Redecorated for Prince of Wales' Trip

Liverpool, Jan. 15 (INS)—The S. S. Oropesa, on which the Prince of Wales will make his visit to the Argentine, Brazil, Chile and Peru, left here today after extensive alterations had been made for the special comfort of the prince and his brother, Prince George.

He will travel incognito in the liner as the Earl of Chester, the oldest of his titles.

He will occupy a stateroom with bath and private sitting rooms amidships on the port side of "C" deck, and Prince George will have a similar suite on the starboard deck. Both suites have been completely redecorated.

On arriving in the Argentine from Chile, February 28, he will stay for some days in the Rio Negro territory. He is expected to spend the first day as the guest of the family of Bauquido, at one of their estancias. On March 1 he is expected to stay at a station of the Argentine Southern Land Co.

At a later stage of his tour, after opening the Buenos Aires exhibition on March 14, the Prince may see something of the country in the northern district of Tucuman.

He also is expected to visit the Cordoban Province during the second week of March as the guest of both Argentine and Britons established in the country.

The Spanish of the Prince, as the result of hard study during the last 12 months, is now regarded as almost perfect.

Village Destroyed by Argentine Flood

San Antonio De Los Cobres, Argentina, a.n. 15 (AP)—An Indian arriving here from Susques today said all houses in that village had been destroyed by the swollen river, which carried as much mud as water. Express Companies War on Rate Change

WIFE CHARGES 'FRAMEUP' IN N. Y. PROBE

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—A married young business woman, smartly tailored, testified today in a public hearing into Magistrates' Courts that she had been "framed" on vice charges by two New York policemen.

She did not give her name, lest the publicity injure her business career. She was identified by the alias of "Betty Smith."

She related that she was married in 1922 and was now metropolitan sales agent for several stores. She and her husband parted in 1927, she said, but remained on friendly terms and the husband, who was in court today, frequently visited her at her apartment.

AWAITS HUSBAND

A year ago last November, she said, she was in her apartment, awaiting the arrival of her husband and a mutual friend, when two policemen entered and said they had some business to discuss with her.

The friend had arrived when the policemen came.

"While we were talking in the living room," testified "Mrs. Smith," "the door bell rang. I assumed it was my husband and opened the door. A detective pushed me into the bedroom. He locked the door, spoke to our friend in the living room, then returned and spoke to me.

IDENTIFIES TWO

"Then he called some one on the house phone and another detective came up."

"Do you know who these men are?" Mr. Kresel asked.

"Yes," she replied. "The man who came in first was Officer Morris. The other was Officer Brady."

She picked out both men from the audience in the court room, and then told how the officers, cutting off the telephone and pushing the friend, a "Mr. Hazelton," out of the door, escorted her to the station.

Stanford Grid Stars Make Goal Post of Hoover Home

Stanford University, Cal., Jan. 15 (AP)—President Hoover's home on the Stanford campus was turned into a goal post to settle a post-season football dispute yesterday.

Richard Bogue and George Gray, Stanford tackles, argued over their relative merits on the gridiron. Bogue boasted he could kick a football over the President's home and that Gray couldn't catch it. Gray wagered Bogue couldn't boot it over, but if he did Gray would catch it.

Sun Rays Tell Who's Who Among Babies

Newark, N. J., Jan. 15 (AP)—Mothers and babies are being branded by artificial sun rays at the Newark Beth Israel Hospital. Dr. Paul Keller, director of the hospital, believes the method of identification is almost infallible.

An ultra ray stencil marks either the child's or its mother's initials and can be restored at any time within six months with an ultra violet ray filter.

OIL PACT GOES TO CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Steps to bring under control the untamed giant of the petroleum world, the rich Kettleman Hills oil field of California, were nearing their goal today.

A draft of an agreement, placing the oil pool on a co-operative basis of production, was in the hands of the Senate and House public lands committees for consideration.

Secretary Wilbur, in transmitting the agreement, indorsed its terms. Congressional approval is needed. He estimated the life of the field, considered one of the richest petroleum pools in the world, would be doubled under the co-operative system ending competitive drilling.

The oil of Kettleman Hills, almost as clear as water, contains from three to four times the gasoline of ordinary petroleum.

COASTING CRASH GIRL IS IN 10TH DAY OF COMA

The girl suffered a fractured skull while coasting, when she crashed into an automobile January 5 in Main st.

She failed to recover after physicians worked over her on that day, and each succeeding day and night has been a battle to bring her back.

Forced feeding methods were used to keep her alive, but the girl remains motionless otherwise. At noon she was 240 hours in the coma.

Today she showed slight periods of improvement and doctors were able to feed her normally, with the girl swallowing liquids sub-consciously. She still remained in the coma, however, during the process.

The new method reserved strength that was being sapped before by the tube method of feeding.

Doctors said they have feared the result of an operation because they feel a bone is pressing on the brain. Until the pressure is relieved an operation would be extremely dangerous, they said.

Lauds Hearst's Stage Plan

THE SUGGESTION MADE recently by William Randolph Hearst that the stage clean up itself before it became subject to rigid censorship, was yesterday lauded by Alla Nazimova, actress, as the one sensible suggestion made. Mme. Nazimova is now playing in Boston, appearing in "A Month in the Country," at the Tremont Theater. (Vandamm.)

Nazimova Seconds Hearst Stage Cleanup Plea

There's been too much talk of late lamenting the condition of the theater, claims Alla Nazimova, playing at the Tremont with the Theater Guild in Turgeneva "A Month in the Country."

"Out of all the recent controversies about the stage there has come only one sensible suggestion. And that from William Randolph Hearst," declares the Russian actress.

"Some few weeks ago when Mr. Hearst warned the stage to clean itself up before it became subject to a rigid censorship he gave it a good bit of advice. I hope the theater will take it to heart.

PLAYS CAUSE TROUBLE

"For the trouble with the stage is in its plays. New York producers have the war cry that the 'talkies' are making the stage only a memory. That's not so. Moving pictures, 'talkie' or silent, can never take the place of the theater.

"And most of the actors on the legit-mate stage are around pitying the audiences who can't seem to understand the great works of drama the theater is giving them. That's a lot of sentimentalilating. The theater isn't giving good drama, and the people won't come and sit through poor stuff.

"The stage educated its audiences to dislike melodrama, to ridicule unnatural plays. But now that's what the theater is offering. And the theater is astounded that it can't put over its drivel.

PLAYWRIGHTS TO BLAME

"We can't blame our actors, our directors or our stage artists, for we have the finest that there are. The fault is in the playwrights today. They haven't kept up with the rest of the theater. Every theater in New York can't give Ibsen, Shakespeare, Teleikov or Maeterlinck. That would never do. We need good new plays and we're not getting them.

NO FEAR FOR THEATER

"But for all the theaters' lack of plays, I'm not really in fear for the theater. Any institution that is a necessity will go on, and the stage is necessary. And, of course, sooner or later, good playwrights will appear.

"About myself?" Nazimova smiled.

"I'm not so young as I used to be, you know. But I'm going on trying. No, no talkies for me. I guess I'm what you call 'of the theater.'"

Rumor of Theft of Acord's Body Denied

El Paso, Tex., Jan. 15 (AP)—A report from Ciudad, Chihuahua, in Mexico City that the body of Art Acord, former film cowboy, had been stolen by robbers who escaped in an airplane was denied here today.

Kasper & Maxon, El Paso undertakers, said papers showed the body, due to arrive in Los Angeles by train today, was removed legally from Mexico. The body was shipped from this city at 9:40 a. m., yesterday.

Fight Tobacco Rates

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Tobacco manufacturers doing business in North Carolina and Virginia today attacked freight rates from the two states to points in eastern territory in a petition filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

MRS. OWEN ASKS MIDDIES BE TAKEN BACK

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Representative Ruth Bryan Owen pleaded with the House naval committee today for reinstatement of the two midshipmen discharged from the Naval Academy for taking two girls into the mess hall.

"The authorities admit there was no immorality or viciousness in the minds of these boys when they took the girls into the mess hall," she said.

The midshipmen were Miller S. Burgin of Jacksonville, Fla., and Lawrence L. Myatt of Quincy, Mass. Both were dismissed after "partially disguising" the two girls in uniforms for the meal.

Mrs. Owen, a Florida Democrat, said she was appearing in behalf of the family of Burgin, calling attention to the fact that the youth's father is pastor of the Trinity Methodist Church of Miami. The impulse which led the midshipmen to break the rules, she said, was the same feeling that makes a young boy turn handsprings in the presence of his best girl.

"If they hang these two boys from the yard arm that impulse still will be present," she said.

Peruvian Court to Probe Leguia's Term

Lima, Peru, Jan. 15 (AP)—The national sanctions court today decided to investigate charges that former President Augusto B. Leguia had misappropriated funds. Woman, Native of Vermont, 100 Today

Lewiston, N. Y., Jan. 15 (AP)—One hundred peals of the old bell in the historic Presbyterian church today announced the reaching of the century mark by Mrs. Elizabeth Jewett Scovell, pioneer resident of the Niagara frontier. $100,000 Boost in Hampden Budget

Springfield, Jan. 15 (AP)—An increase in the Hampden county budget of more than $100,000, bringing the total to more than $1,000,000, was announced by the county commission today. The increase is mainly because of highway projects undertaken to provide employment.

Fire Hazard Missing

PRIVATE CHISHOLM LIEUT. JOHNSON

Old University Reopens

Siena, Italy, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Royal University of Siena, founded in 1300, today opened its doors for the second time to the chosen group of foreign students for a special course. A number of Americans are enrolled.

Noted Club to Move

New York, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Union League Club will move to a new home on Park ave. next month. The brownstone building on Fifth ave. at 39th st. will be wrecked and a skyscraper will replace it.

FIREMEN BUILD GOLF COURSE IN BASEMENT

How do firemen spend their spare time while they are waiting for a fire? There are all sorts of ways, to be sure, but "the gang" out at Station 3, Walnut st., Wellesley Hills, solved their own problem by using their spare time to construct an indoor golf course in the basement of the station house.

It all started when "the gang," composed of Lieut. George Johnson, Allen Chisholm, Joseph Sullivan and Tony Paltrineri put their heads together and decided that something must be done to relieve the monotony. As it happened they were all miniature golf fans, so there was only one answer.

Out of their plans grew the only indoor golf course in the vicinity of Wellesley and the first firemen's golf course in the world, as far as can be learned. It covers a space of about 30 ft. by 25 ft.

Sawdust and glue was used to make the fairways and greens, while green dye was prepared to color the material. Holes were bored in the concrete basement floor and the necessary markers were installed. As for hazards, old pieces of cast off equipment fill the bill. Old nozzles of hones, axes, lanterns, hydrant wrenches, and brooms are scattered here and there on the fairways and it is through these or around them that the player must tap his ball.

Quick Relief! Real Relief!
When your head passages are clogged and you are hawking, snuffling and blowing in utter distress, here's what to do. Take a little Albatum on your finger tip and apply it to your nostrils. Relief comes almost immediately, for this is the new-type remedy that releases vapors in the nasal passages. The penetrating vapors reach the stuffed passages, relieve congestion and open the head and make breathing free and easy. They also soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes. Every breath you take carries relief! Albatum is economical, too, for the cost is but a few cents. It's the most useful remedy you can put in your medicine chest. Clean to use—does not stick or stain clothes. It is on sale at Service Druggists and other independent drug stores and Albatum. Note the name carefully. A McKesson & Robbins product.

CHAPTER 46

"Do as much for you," he said.

"Got him—guy with a bundle—looked like it might be gas or dynamite," Kirby said after he had fired a shot.

"They can't dynamite us—they wouldn't do that," Callahan cried.

To his amazement, Callahan held up his wrist. Hevis unlocked the handcuff and locked it to a door bar so that the priest couldn't interfere.

"Why—I'll stand!" asked Callahan.

"That's better—you got some nerve, at that—"

As Mears said it he shot Callahan through the heart.

They wrote a note then, to the warden, saying that Harris would be killed next and then Father O'Connors.

"He's only kiddin' 'em," D'Amore whispered to Mayor, "kiddin' th warden. He wouldn't kill a man of God."

"I guess he would, that guy's hard."

Bullets whizzed through the window, a rain of them, they ducked. Then D'Amore and Mayor at the window waved their white handkerchief and Callahan's body with the note went through the cell window. Two trusties came down to get it.

"Tell 'em who comes next, Mayor," Mears ordered.

Mayor leaned out.

"Hey, you, tell th' warden—"

"Duck!" shrieked D'Amore, for he had seen two men somewhat back suddenly raise their rifles.

He wasn't quick enough to warn Mayor, who tumbled back to the floor to the cell.

"They got me," gasped young Mayor, writhing in agony.

"Here, help me, get him on a cot," Mears exclaimed as he knelt beside the writhing Mayor

"If you will unfasten this handcuf, Mears—"

"Never mind that, O'Connors—he don't need no prayers, he needs help," Mears growled.

"That was why I spoke—I know a great deal about medicine and surgery. I thought I might relieve him."

Mears unfastened the handcuff that held the priest to the cell door. Together they got Mayor on a cot.

"Stick to that window there, D'Amore—and you at the other window, Kirby," Mears ordered, "and don't waste any shots—I've got a few left myself and I'm saving one."

He turned to watch Father O'Connors, who was examining Mayor's injury—a bullet had crashed through his chest.

Mears saw the priest shake his head, slowly, and knew that he meant to get over to him that it was a mighty serious injury.

"How did it happen?" Mears asked.

"He was wavin' th' truce all O. K. Two guys seen it but shot at him," D'Amore called out from his watching post by the window.

"A lousy trick—Oh, God—it hurts," Mayor gasped.

Hopelessness

"I—I wish I could see Elsine, Hey, Mears, if we get out—"

He seemed to lapse into momentary unconsciousness.

The shooting outside seemed to increase tenfold.

"Funny—they was gonna croak me anyway."

"Better keep quiet," Mears urged.

He was more grim than ever now and glared at the priest, who was doing the best he could to stop the blood flow.

"You've gone completely mad, Mears—I am ready any time—it won't help you—but—"

"Save the kid—you'll know when your time comes, O'Connors."

Mayor recognized the priest then. "What's this? I ain't croakin'—don't pray over me none. Father—I ain't croakin'," Mayor cried.

"He known surgery, kid, he'll help you," Mears spoke up.

"Listen, Mears—when we get out we'll get out soon now—you drop me off in town—I gotter see Elaine —I want to see if that kid's born yet, promies, when we get out—"

"Sure, sure, Mayor."

Father O'Connors stepped outside to Mears.

Kirby had ducked back and put his hand to his cheek. The hand came away bloody. Kirby began to curse.

"Get you?" Mears asked.

"Scratched me—wish I had a thousand more bullets."

"God, I'm in misery—the pain," Mayor suddenly cried.

"Hol-mes!" chanted Werner.

Mayor fell back. Mears looked startled.

"Has he kicked in?"

"Not yet," O'Connors said.

"Hey, Killer, c'm here quick' Kirby called, "a guy's comin' down with a box—looked to me like it might be—"

"See that other guy trailin' him with a roll of wire," D'Amore called out.

Mears got up to look and fast ducked to escape a swarm of machine gun bullets that poured through the window and splattered against the stone casement.

He looked again.

"That's dynamite, or soup—may be TNT—shoot 'em down, both of 'em, quick!"

"What's happening — lemme help—"

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling —sick headache — torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

U. S. CHEMISTS STUDY SECRET GAS BOMB

By EDWARD B. LOCKETT, International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Government chemists have begun work on an entirely new type of combination aerial-poison gas-explosive bomb, it was learned today.

While details are secret, it was learned America is at least equally advanced with other world powers in th's important phase of offensive development, in the opinion of officials.

C. R. Rankin, one of the civilian chemists of the Chemical Warfare Service, revealed that chemists have little hopes of any radical developments in the type of poison gas used in war-time within the near future.

SERVICEABLE EQUIPMENT

If this country enters a war within the next several years, he added, probably the same equipment used in the World War would be serviceable.

Virtually the only new development in gas work is that concerned with the perfection of a more deadly gas bomb.

Rankin reasserted the claims of other chemical experts that gas warfare is more humane than any other type.

EFFECTIVE WEAPON

"Gas is effective in that it takes a fighter out of active combat," said Rankin. "It seldom kills, however. A man has about ten chances of coming out whole after a gas injury to one after a gunshot wound."

Officials complained gas masks were too bulky and now chemical warfare chiefs are trying to perfect a more compact and lighter mask.

During the World War many of the gas casualties were due to the premature removal of masks to relieve aching heads.

Hammond Woods Addition Asked in Bill

A new county highway in Boylston and West Boylston, to cost $50,000, would be authorized in a bill filed in the State Senate today by Senator Elbert M. Crockett. The proposed highway would run from a point near the Worcester-Clinton line to Prier Lane, near the so-called Hunting place in West Boylston. A bill authorizing the Metropolitan District Commission to acquire 21 acres of land adjoining Hammond Woods, Brookline, to be joined to that reservation, was filed by Representative Albert F. Bigelow.

HAPPY TO TELL ABOUT KONJOLA

Strange, but true in case after case, Konjola seems at its best in stubborn ailments that have held on year after year, defying all treatments and medicines tried.

MR. EMIL BUCHI

Just read the experience of Mr. Emil Buchi, 234 Trumbull street, Hartford. Is there any wonder that he praises Konjola—any wonder that he recommends it to his friends? Would you not like to know more about such a medicine? Then visit the Konjola Man at the Epstein drug store, 2-4 Scollay Square, Boston. Let him tell you of hundreds of experiences similar to that of Mr. Buchi. Get facts, not promises; results, not wild claims. But right now read Mr. Buchi's own words about Konjola:

"I am happy to be able to make this statement about what Konjola did for me. For five years I had indigestion, with gas after every meal and pains at night that did not permit me to sleep. I had no vigor and lost weight. My kidneys bothered me, too, and I had to get up several times a night. But after four bottles of Konjola my entire system is different. Digestion is fine; kidneys are normal, and I can eat anything I like without distress afterwards. I am glad to recommend Konjola to all who suffer as I once did."

Konjola contains no alcohol, no nerve-deadening drugs, no heart-depressing chemicals. It needs no such ingredients. Konjola is for the aged; it may be given to the youngest infant with surprising results. Truly Konjola is a medicine for all the family, for every medicine shelf.

The Konjola Man is at Epstein's —Scollay Sq. (Epstein Drug Co.), Boston, where daily he is meeting the public and explaining the merits of this amazing medicine.

RELIEF BILL PROVIDES JOBS FOR 700

Approximately 700 men will be put to work the first of the week by state department heads in various parts of the state as a result of the action of the Legislature in rushing through the first part of Governor Ely's program for unemployment relief.

The initial appropriation of $300,700 for state forest work and repairs and alterations to public buildings was rushed through both the House and Senate yesterday without debate or a dissenting voice and signed by the Governor.

The emergency employment will cover a period of about 10 weeks. Of the total number to be employed, the department of conservation will take on 500. Public health will increase its force by 50 and, in addition to retaining some 170 men that were intended to be let out, the Metropolitan district commission will add a few more. Painting and odd jobs in the quartermaster's department of the National Guard will provide additional jobs.

Under plans prepared by Conservation Commissioner William A. L. Sazeley, the men to be employed on the state forests will be selected from lists furnished by the city and town unemployment committees situated in the vicinity of places where the work is to be done. Married men with families will be given preference, the commissioner states.

Finds Plenty of Good Books for Children

Editor Boston American:

A preacher in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York city, said last Sunday we need better books for children and young people.

We have these books, as any one familiar with this kind of book knowledge must know. In fact, the writer of this letter has taken pains to examine such literature and is convinced there never were so many good books published for children and young people as there are today. Anyone who takes time to examine these books will find there is no occasion for making the statement that we need better books for young people.

Joins in Extending Sympathy to Curley

Editor Boston American:

The sorrow that came into the home of Mayor Curley touched us all. Many expressed themselves in public statements through the newspapers. Others wrote comforting letters to the mayor. The day of the funeral, and before that, deep feeling for the family was in evidence everywhere. The address of Cardinal O'Connell at the requiem carried with it such helpful words as well expressed in touching assurance of the belief that comes to us all at these moments, to give hope in the revelations of eternity.

The sadness lingers. The mayor goes back to his daily routine of duties, yes, to forget, but not this entirely, but to bear his sorrow that will tarry around him. It will come back now and then, but it will be borne in the hopefulness of the light of the future.

Assails Request for Blasphemy Statute Repeal

Editor Boston American:

The repeal of the statute in the general laws prohibiting blasphemy is asked by the Rev. Roland D. Sawyer, Democratic member of the House. Mr. Sawyer is a minister and a legislator.

If he was acting in the capacity of a legislator in asking this repeal, this letter would not be written. As a minister, however, he opens himself to criticism. If he had asked for some changes in the statute prohibiting blasphemy, his point would be well taken. But the repeal of the statute upon the ground that it is against religious freedom is putting into that statute what was never intended.

As a minister he should not be identified with such a repeal. As a modernist in religious thinking he has read into that statute what was never intended. The fact is there is too much swearing around the State House which borders more than ever on blasphemy. I should be glad to have this statute revised, but to have it repealed, a thousand times No!

Lynn Firemen Praised for Aid to Unemployed

Editor Boston American:

Jobs or charity? Which is most needed at this time when the employment situation bids fair to spread untold suffering throughout the country?

The Lynn firemen set an excellent example for other cities and in such a crisis as this, safe and sane policies of normal and more prosperous days must be forgotten and all unite with one common purpose—to help the unemployed-unfortunate at once.

The Lynn firemen believe aid should be given the unfortunates at once without waiting for them to earn it. At the present time the members of the fire department are contributing $100 a week for the benefit of the unemployed. In addition they are to donate the net proceeds of their charity ball, which is taking the place of the annual ball of the Lynn Firemen's Relief Association.

Chief Edward Chase, treasurer of the event, will turn the entire profits over to the mayor, Fred Manning, who will dispose of it as he sees fit to help relieve suffering and distress.

Adjusted Compensation Is Due, Says Veteran

Editor Boston American:

First I want to thank the Boston American for keeping the veterans in touch with the Wright-Patman bill. I would like to insert a statement from Washington, D. C., in regard to Mr. Hawley. Here it is and think it over. In a recent statement Mr. Hawley, chairman of the House Committee on Ways and Means, stated that Secretary Mellon will be given a hearing on his bills pending before that committee, out of courtesy if a hearing is requested.

More than 100 members of the House of Representatives and more than 2,000,000 citizens of the U. S. are pleading with Mr. Hawley to give them a hearing—even a courtesy hearing will be sufficient—on the proposal to pay the adjusted service certificates in cash now, but Mr. Hawley refuses to call his committee together for that purpose.

He is listening to his "master's voice" and will gladly heed the call but cannot hear the demands for justice by veterans of the World War and millions of others who want a prosperous nation.

Gag rules is not justice. If the proposal is unsound no better way can be devised to expose it than a fair public hearing. If it will bring immediate prosperity to our nation at a time when people are starving to death even on the streets of Washington, passage should be expedited. It can be shown 100 per cent is due; that it can be paid without increasing taxes, now or later; that it will make our nation prosperous immediately, and that it is not in payment of a bonus but for adjusted pay for services rendered just like the railroads, war contractors, 250,000 federal employes and many veterans of the World War have received in cash. The term "bonus" is not only a misnomer, it is erroneous. Now, veterans, send fat petitions at once; each petition will hold 50 to 60 signatures.

Naturalized Citizen Gives Attitude on Aliens

Editor Boston American:

As the "alien" subject is being more or less thoroughly discussed I wonder if the attitude of a naturalized citizen would be read.

I think Mr. Ward has the right attitude in part of his frankly "alien" defense which refers to our corrupt politicians.

But, as for American born being responsible for murderous criminals he is far from being right in his wild guess. Only this morning I read of a new method of deporting our 400,000 convicted "aliens." My experience with aliens is that they expect all the advantages of a citizen without showing their appreciation by becoming naturalized.

They are the first to show their disapproval of wage cuts, lay offs and our general depression. They come to this country and attend our schools and take the better advantages offered by America.

Some will not learn to speak our language or try to educate themselves.

An alien will come to America to better his financial standing and get away from various taxations and political pressures, but will not boost the country that is feeding, clothing and offering him complete freedom. I could start now and write for an hour about law breaking aliens and mention names, heading my list with Al Capone.

Urges Purchase of Only American-Made Products

Editor Boston American:

People of all classes in America have been publishing their resolutions. With such a depression as we are having in this country, I think the best resolution the whole country can make is:

"I resolve not to buy or sell anything but American made products or merchandise."

If all America would make and carry out this resolution, there would be no unemployed in this country in less than six months' time. At present, this is the country's biggest problem, and nothing definite has been done. I don't think there is any better way to help solve this problem, than through our newspapers and magazines.

It has been quoted that between four or five million are unemployed in America at present.

What better way could people of America help themselves than to make a resolution of this kind? Most of all, Chambers of Commerce in America should make this their resolution, because it is to their benefit.

SOMETHING TO THINK ABOUT

Editor Boston American:

We veterans want to express our deep gratitude to Mr. Hearst for his kind efforts in our behalf.

Veterans of New England, we must wake up if we ever expect to get the passage of the Patman bill. The other states are sending in many petitions to their congressmen or senators, or Congressman Wright Patman, our Lone Star friend. Now, if you want any information or petitions, just write to Arthur Peabody, 30 Williams ave., Lynn, Mass. He surely is a friend to veterans who are willing to help themselves. There is hope for us if we will only write and get our friends to do likewise. So let's help Mr. Patman, who is trying to help us, with our signatures on these petitions that Mr. Peabody will send to you on request.

And with Mr. Hearst's help we have only got ourselves to blame. The Spanish War vets, who served in the World War, will be old men if they have to wait until 1945. Both classes of men will be over 50 or 60 years old, and a small percentage of these men will never redeem their certificates because of old age when due them. Many of these men are unemployed and the money would be a blessing to them now, so why not save them as they saved the country in time of need?

Vets who have work probably don't realize what the passage of this bill means to starving children and parents in distress looking for work and returning home empty-handed. It's a shame for the richest country in the world to allow veterans and people who are honest and willing to work starve. Now if this Patman bill goes through it means better days for everyone—not depression, but prosperity for all. Let's go, Veterans. All for One Bill and One Bill for all.

MATHEMATICAL PARTY STAGED FOR EINSTEIN

Pasadena, Cal., Jan. 15 (US)—Prof. Albert Einstein, surrounded by a brilliant group of his "cosmic grenadiers," yesterday was taken on a mathematical jaunt through the space he has surveyed and revamped.

In the presence of scientists whose exploits in the realms of astronomy and physics has made them and Einstein world-famous in the past 25 years, the German savant attended the Mount Wilson observatory seminar.

LECTURE BY STROMBERG

The lecture was by Dr. Stromberg, distinguished staff astronomer of Mount Wilson, who spoke on "The Rotation of the Galaxy."

Einstein and his "cosmic grenadiers," each having experimentally verified important phases of the relativity theory, heard from Dr. Stromberg how recent Mount Wilson researches have changed former ideas about the galaxy to which this earth belongs.

They heard that the regular motion of our celestial neighbors is not due to "star streaming," as heretofore believed, but to lack of symmetry in the galaxy's shape.

That the earth and the sun-powerful sun are not the center of that galaxy, not by some 40,000 light years to be exact.

FIGURES DELIGHT

That Sagittarius, in the southern hemisphere, seems to be the center.

That a mere trifle of 250,000 years is a period of our galaxy's rotation and that, therefore, our sun has been able to make five or six round trips in the geological time of this sphere's career.

And just to whet Professor Einstein's appetite for mathematics, Dr. Stromberg has his hearers figures on the mass and numbers of our sky's companions.

Figured in grams, our galaxy weighs this unutterable figure—19 followed by 42 zeroes. And it is made up of 300 billion stars.

Professor Einstein enjoyed the lecture immensely and showed keen delight when mathematical equations four or five feet long were chalked up on the blackboard.

"Old Brighton Bull" Bellows Once More

The fire horn, known for many years as the "old Brighton bull," bellowed again last night as the Old North Brighton Associates held their sixth annual reunion banquet in Warren Hall. It sounded its deep bellow for 15 minutes in honor of the old time residents, reminding them of bygone days when it warned of fires in and near the abattoir.

Woman Judge Urges Clubs to Boost Clinic Bill

By NANCY BREWSTER

The need for a hospital clinic for the dissemination of rheumatism education as embodied in a bill now pending before the Legislature, was stressed by Judge Sadie Lipner Shulman, one of Massachusetts' first two women judges, in an address before the Boston Women's Civic League at the Hotel Brunswick yesterday.

Advocating the bill presented by Dr. George H. Bigelow, state commissioner of public health, Judge Shulman urged the clubwomen to support the bill and do all they could to have it passed by the Legislature.

Massachusetts needs such hospital clinics where education for the correction of the disease in the early stages may be given those afflicted, Judge Shulman added.

"Dr. Bigelow claims that there are more people crippled annually from rheumatism than from any other disease," the feminine jurist continued. "The new measure, as proposed by Dr. Bigelow, advocates the establishment of a hospital clinic and the adoption of a program designed to combat the chronic insidiousness of the disease at an initial expense of $1,500,000."

Mrs. Henry H. Cudworth, president of the league, presided and introduced the speaker.

AUTO INDUSTRY, RECOVERING, SAYS PEED

"Don't let the depression make you forget that business now is better than a few years ago when we called it good," L. G. Peed, general sales manager of the De Soto Motor Co. told a meeting of New England dealers at the Copley-Plaza Hotel today.

"Business is suffering from temporary stomach aches caused by eating more than it could digest during the boom period," Mr. Peed said. "Every sign indicates the attack of indigestion is at an end. I believe the automobile industry has learned a lesson. We may hope for a more balanced diet in the future.

"It is an open question whether we will have another year like 1929 in the near future. Dr. Charles Saville of Detroit, statistician of the Chrysler organization, has compiled figures showing that the record will be broken in the next five years.

"Even in the worst years certain firms make good showings while their competitors fail. The public is more critical of value when dollars are scarce. In such a time, the product of unusual value, like the De Soto car, comes into its own."

Other speakers were Dr. Paul W. Ivey of the University of California, sales counsellor to the Chrysler Co., and H. G. Monck, Chrysler director of used car activity. L. F. McNulty, New England district manager of the De Soto Co., presided at a luncheon.

Resort Coats Favor Fitted Line

By ANN ARDEN

ANN ARDEN broadcasts latest style news over WLEX every Tuesday and Thursday at 10:30 a. m.

THE QUESTION of what coat to take resorting this winter is simply answered in the current showings. After 15 minutes of gazing upon soft pastels and clear whites in the lightest, most softly featured fabrics—you feel like flinging your Christmas furs to the ashman!

* * *

THE RESORT coat is radical in any respect—it is the comfortable sort of wrap that agreeably adapts itself to many a costume. Its silhouette is still slightly fitted and usually belted. Flare appears only moderately in the skirt. In fabric, monotone tweeds, flannel, polo cloth, chinchilla and a new coating known as cotton tweed are first choices. Flannel is doing an exceptionally smart return. In color, white is first, as in all resort costumes, with pastels next in line.

* * *

YOU WILL be surprised to note how little fur is being used to trim these coats. In fact, models entirely without fur and collars are very good. An example of this type is a white flannel with an interesting buttoned bodice, and sash belt. Looks like a dress.

* * *

THE FLARED from the shoulder line is good in motor coats. One employs plaid with dashing effect. The front borders, tie scarf and deep cuffs use the black and white plaid without benefit of button or closing. The coat itself is a black rough woolen.

* * *

WHEN FUR is used, it is usually in the manner of the white wolf collar on a soft blue woolen with a stitched belt and only a modified flare.

* * *

THE CLASSIC polo coat in white, several versions of the tailored coachman's coat and any number of models with interesting self-fabric collars are also very good for daytime wear under a hot sun.

* * *

RETURNING TO the very new coat that looks like a dress, the trig, youthful model pictured certainly fills that description. Of "Magnolia" Espana, a creamy pink, the tone of the heart of that lovely blossom—it has V sections widening the lower part of skirt edge, is fastened center front with large brown bone buttons, under deep vertical tuck, and the sleeves button at the wrists. There is a tie belt of the material, and the collar is high in back, extending to scarf ends.

* * *

THE TURBAN is formed of felt stripes asymetrically banded, in two shades of beige. Gloves, pumps and hose are beige, too, which smart shade promises a revival for spring.

ANN ARDEN will answer questions concerning clothes, social customs or fashions generally. Address your questions to the Boston Evening American or the Boston Sunday Advertiser or to Station WLEX.

RETAIL TRADE SHOWS GAIN

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—A decrease of one per cent in employment and 0.4 per cent in payroll totals for December under November was reported today by the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

This figure was based only on establishments reporting.

Gains were shown in two groups: Retail trade, up 17 per cent and anthracite mining 2 per cent. Manufacturing was 1.8 per cent off in employment, and down 1.3 in payroll totals, based on returns by 13,150 establishments in 54 of the chief manufacturing industries. Thirteen of these industries showed employment increases and 15 showed higher payroll totals.

The bureau noted a per capita earning increase for the manufacturing industries in the month amounting to 0.4 per cent. It reported also that 10,964 establishments in 60 manufacturing industries reported an average of 90 per cent of full-time operation.

Thatcher Colt Solves Another Baffling Mystery!

The name of Thatcher Colt possibly will be unfamiliar to many who knew all the Police Commissioners from Edward P. Mulrooney back to the days of Big Bill Devery. For the name Thatcher Colt is fictional. But the character is that of a composite of New York's great police commissioners. He is as thoroughly the policeman as Mulrooney, as dramatic and dressy as Whalen, as great an executive as McLaughlin, as much the disciplinarian as Arthur Wood and as dynamic as Theodore Roosevelt. In addition he was a great detective, he used everything that science had to offer in the detection of crime from chemistry to the pneumo-cardio-spygmometer (lie-detector machine.) And in his great career in the department he never faced a more baffling case than the disappearance (later it was listed as the murder) of that pretty girl whose appealing pictures filled the papers, Geraldine Foster.

ARABS DEMAND PALESTINE RULE BE UPSET

Jerusalem, Jan. 15 (AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic Agency reports that abolition of the Palestine mandate the withdrawal of the Balfour declaration and the establishment of a Palestine government responsible to an elected Parliament are demanded by the Arab executive in its reply to the white paper submitted to High Commissioner Chancellor today with t request that he forward it to L ion and Geneva.

The executive finds that the I four declaration is contrar Article 22 of the mandate and th promises made to the Arabs. The mandate contravenes the national and natural rights of the Arabs, the executive asserts.

Considering that the first duty of Great Britain is to prevent the transfer of Arab lands to non-Arabs and to prohibit, definitely Jewish immigration, the executive points out that under Turkish rule the Arabs enjoyed a wide measure of self-government, possessing administrative, municipal and parliamentary councils.

Professor Says 'Bah' to First Sight Love of Romantic Co-Eds

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 10 (AP)—What Professor Arthur J. Todd thinks about co-eds falling in love at first sight might be summed up approximately in one word—bah—with an exclamation point back of it.

Professor Todd, head of the sociology department at Northwestern University, gave co-eds his views during a lecture on romance and marriage. They should not marry, he said, until they have been out of college several years, and then they should march to the altar like old-fashioned girls of the nineties, with young men who have courted them a long time.

As to "cozy nooks," arranged to promote romance, he said they aren't much good anyway.

RED CROSS AID GIVEN ALREADY TO 405,000

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP) A Red Cross summary today showed 405,000 persons being cared for in drouth relief to 383 counties in 21 states.

The total amount of cash grants up to noon yesterday was $615,781. Total expenditures for all type of relief, food, clothing, medical supplies and feed for stock was $1,352,187.

Chairman Payne said calls for relief in Texas and Oklahoma counties have mounted in the past few days. Relief has been sent into all but nine of the 75 counties of Arkansas.

"Many Red Cross chapters, which have been giving relief from local contributions, have notified the national organization they soon will be at the end of their resources," said Judge Payne. "The need for the $10,000,000 relief fund is great.

"We are sure, however, that response will be prompt and generous. From Florida, a state in which the Red Cross has given help in the past, came this telegram: 'People here have felt hard times, but still have hearts, as their response will show.'"

Mr. Payne narrated the following examples of response to President Hoover's appeal for aid:

The federal Council of Churches of Christ in America sent urgent appeals to Protestant churches to cooperate in the fund.

Archbishop Michael J. Curley of the Baltimore diocese sparked from a hospital where he is ill a telegram urging the Catholic press to make a special appeal for aid in the campaign.

NEW ROW OVER HOOVER BOOST

Washington, Jan 15 (UB)—Robert H. Lucas, executive chairman of the Republican National Committee, was the center of a new storm in G. O. P. ranks today, as the result of revelation that he circulated a note, to Republican precinct leaders which was taken as the opening of a Hoover presidential campaign for 1932.

Senator Bronson Cutting (R) of New Mexico, acted with a note from Republican national head quarters, an inexcusable misuse of national committee funds and an abuse of the national committee itself. He intends to air the entire affair on the Senate floor.

Meanwhile Senator Smith W. Brookhart, of Iowa, declared:

"The national committee should be the voice of the people of the Republican party. Instead, it is being made the personal machine of the White House."

"I think it very unfortunate for the President that his 1932 campaign should have been started by such a person as Lucas. With Mr. Lucas' present status, I almost suspect that Mr. Raskob must have suggested it as a master stroke for the Democratic party."

WILBUR STAND ON OIL TARIFF ATTACKED

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—Secretary Hurley told the conference of independent oil producers meeting here today the administration "has taken no position for or against a tariff on oil."

Referring to a recent statement by Secretary Wilbur that such a tariff was unnecessary, Hurley emphasized the Federal Oil Conservation Board had taken no stand either way. Both Hurley and Wilbur are members of the board.

An attack upon Wilbur's tariff statement was made by Wirt Franklin of Oklahoma City, chairman of the meeting and president of the Independent Petroleum Association.

He said "The present crisis in the oil industry has been brought about by a marked decrease in consumption and a tremendous increase in production."

Senator Sheppard, Democrat, Texas, promised the conference to help efforts to obtain an oil tariff. Representative Garner of that State said he was inclined to favor the proposal.

Franklin departed from his prepared speech to attack Secretaries Wilbur and Mellon, the latter of whom he accused of being the leading director of importing oil companies.

The conservationists, Franklin said, are in a conspiracy with large companies to destroy the small independent producers. He contended Wilbur's policy would "destroy Western civilization."

"Is he speaking the views of the administration or did he give a personal opinion?" Franklin asked.

HOOVER SIGNS BILL CLIPPING JONES LAW

Washington, Jan. 15 (INS)—President Hoover today signed the Stobbs bill, modifying the drastic Jones "five-and-ten" prohibition bill, under which it has been possible to send a prohibition first-offender to prison for five years and fine him $10,000 for violation of the Volstead Act.

This bill creates a new classification of prohibition offenders for petty violations with a short jail sentence or $500 fine prescribed for the violators.

The modification was recommended by the Wickersham Commission in its initial report a year ago.

Garson Drops His Demand on Connie for Cash

The Story So Far

Connie Calvert, beautiful daughter of a rich family, lives with her widowed mother in a Connecticut town not far from New York. She is to be married to Jim Tracy, a pleasing young man who works in a brokerage office. The day before her wedding she receives a letter which greatly disturbs her. She sends Jim home. Jim, however sensing that something is wrong, parks his car in a secluded spot and late in the evening hears Connie's roadster leave her garage. He trails her, but his gasoline gives out and he loses her. She goes to a cheap restaurant in Tenth ave., where Duke Garson, a gangster, tells her she has a half sister in the underworld. He offers to keep silent for $100,000

"IF I THOUGHT you meant that," Garson said, with low pitched decisiveness, "I'd tell Kitty to forget all about the money. If you want to, you are in a position to do more for her in every way than she could do for herself in a million years. The only question is, how do we know you aren't stalling?"

Duke Garson's doubt of her sincerity set Connie's bronze brown eyes flashing.

"Do you think I don't mean to be fair?"

"I don't know," Garson replied. "You're a stranger to me."

Master Mind

"You two hand me a laugh," she stated. "You're both so busy scrapping that pretty soon you'll be leaving me out of it altogether. You're a fine master mind, Duke! What are you think I want an ody to adopt me? No, Kid," she added, directly to Connie, "you'd better leave me completely alone."

"Why do you say that?" Garson inquired.

"Because she's one kind of a girl—I another. My Tenth ave. ways would be fine with her society stuff, wouldn't they? I'd be about as much good to her as a sore thumb. I wouldn't be a real sister to her—I'd be an affliction."

"I don't mean that I'm trying to make you all over according to some pattern I have in my mind," Connie explained.

"You better leave me alons, Connie You don't mind if I call you Connie, do you?"

"I wish you would."

"Well, don't get any romantic ideas about me, Connie. You're one kind of a girl and I'm another. You can't bring two kids up, one in a mansion, the other in a sewer, and expect them to turn out alike. You know me, Duke; you know I'm a pretty rough character when I get started."

"I've seen worse," Garson responded, noncommittally.

"I can't help it," Connie said intently. "You're my sister, Kitty, and I feel so strangely drawn toward you that I just can't let you get away from me now. All my life I thought I was an only child and, somehow, now we've found each other, I have a glad feeling to know I have a sister. An odd sort or tingle, too."

Hard-Boiled

"I'm hard-boiled," Kitty told her. "Sure, I feel kind of funny, but I've known you existed for a long time."

Duke Garson lit a cigarette wearily.

"You two," he remarked, "are drifting into family reminiscences that I didn't count on. Frankly, Miss Calvert, I thought you'd be a lot more high hat, and I thought Kitty wouldn't be so soft."

"You're all right, Duke," Kitty told him, giving his arm a friendly pat. "He's a great guy, Connie."

"No man is a great guy when he tries to handle two women," Garson said, philosophically. "I thought this was to be something like a polite holdup—and it turns out to be a cooing party. We sit down at dagger points, and after a while we get sociable and the whole racket perishes. Nothing happens—we just talk and our minds change."

"We're going to get some-

EX-GOV. ALLEN WILL AID RED CROSS DRIVE

L. E. Kirstein, Rabbi Levi and Other Notables Also Agree to Help Raise Quota

Former Governor Frank G. Allen and a number of other prominent citizens today agreed to serve on the committee headed by Mayor Curley and James Jackson of the Metropolitan Red Cross chapter to raise Boston's quota of $300,000 in the National Red Cross $10,000,000 drouth relief drive.

Acceptances to serve on the committee were also received from Ralph Bradley, Sybil H. Holmes, Louis E. Kirstein, Rabbi Harry Levi and Bernard W. Trafford.

At the same time Mayor Sinclair Weeks of Newton called on all employed residents of that city to subscribe quickly to its quota of $11,500 for the drought sufferers.

The committee which also includes Governor Ely and a number of prominent business men and women, was formed at a meeting at the Parker House yesterday.

"GREATEST" CRISIS

Goveror Ely has issued a proclamation urging the people to cooperate in gaining the quota

"The citizens of our Commonwealth have ever been ready and willing to aid the afflicted. I am sure they will do so in this emergency," he said.

The drouth crisis is the greatest that has ever faced the nation, Jackson said at yesterday's meeting. He said the suffering of people suffering, starving and in immediate need today far surpasses the total affected at the peak of the Mississippi river flood.

At present relief is being given to approximately 150,000 people in the eastern area and 250,000 in the middle west.

Expenditures for seed have already reached $1,352,304. Appeals for aid of every form have trebled in the last few days.

THOUSANDS IN DANGER

Snow and dropping temperature have added to the suffering in Missouri and Arkansas, it is reported. Thousands will die of malnutrition unless aid comes soon, nurses in the stricken area report.

Miss Katherine Gorman left for Washington last night after an emergency call to the drouth area. She reports to national headquarters at Washington today for instructions and assignment.

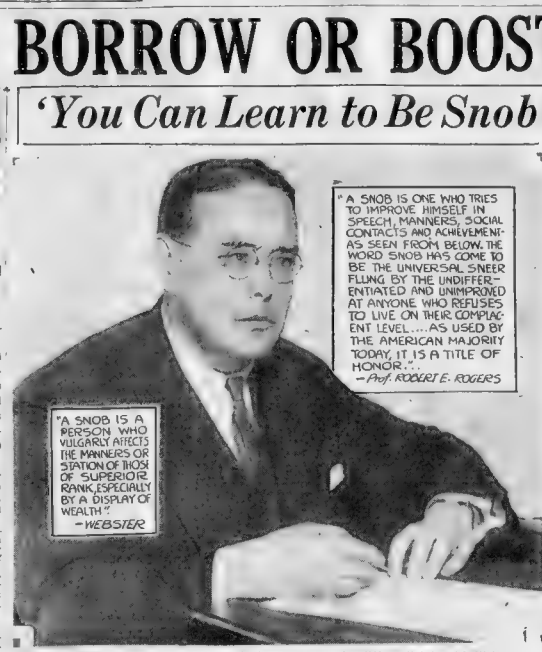
Mayor James M. Curley, honorary chairman, James Jackson, chairman, Governor Joseph B. Ely, Gen. Hugh Bancroft, Nelson J. Bowers, Allston Burr, Board W. Bowditch, Fowler Brewer, Harold H. Burbank, Mrs. Cutler, Mrs. Frederick Deane (Ann Hard), Capt. W. Frederick H. Dewson, H. Sidney Endicott, Russell Fessenden, Allen Forbes, Lloyd Frost, Arthur Gaston, Mrs. Leo A. Frothingham, Basil Gavin, George Peabody Gardner, Jr., John T. Graydon, F. Pierrepont Hallowell, Christian Herter, F. L. Hosmer, Ralph Hunneman, Lewis A. Hunter, Carl T. Keyser, Rev. Arthur Lee Kinsolving, George C. Lee, Arnold Lenard, Robert W. Maynard, George R. Mumford, Col. Thomas F. Murphy, Cardinal O'Connell, Henry Parkman, James J. Phelan, William Revere, Frederick P. Rowe, Leverett Saltonstall, Mrs. R. W. Saltonstall, R. D. Sears, Jr., Philip Stockton, James J. Storrow, Jr., Fiot Wadsworth, C. F. Weed, Sinclair Weeks, Eva Wadsworth White.

Sculptor Cleared in Art Theft Case

Peter Grenier, sculptor, of Wellesley, Roslindale, was found not guilty yesterday of receiving "The Fisherman's Statue," together with other works of art, and materials alleged to have been stolen from the Eastern Specialty Manufacturing Co.

Some of the work involved is said to have been the handiwork of Mr. Grenier himself. The case was heard by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court.

'You Can Learn to Be Snob at Home'--Rogers



"A SNOB IS ONE WHO TRIES TO IMPROVE HIMSELF IN SPEECH, MANNERS, SOCIAL CONTACTS AND ACHIEVEMENT AS SEEN FROM BELOW. THE WORD SNOB HAS COME TO BE THE UNIVERSAL SNEER FLUNG BY THE UNDIFFERENTIATED AND UNIMPROVED AT ANYONE WHO REFUSES TO LIVE ON THEIR COMPLACENT LEVEL ... AS USED BY THE AMERICAN MAJORITY TODAY, IT IS A TITLE OF HONOR ...
—Prof. ROBERT E. ROGERS
"A SNOB IS A PERSON WHO VULGARLY AFFECTS THE MANNERS OR STATION OF THOSE OF SUPERIOR RANK, ESPECIALLY BY A DISPLAY OF WEALTH."
—WEBSTER

HERE IS THE MAN who has attracted all sorts of criticism by his plea for snobbery, Prof. Robert E. Rogers, of Technology. Prof. Rogers, who differs slightly with Webster on the meaning of the term, gives his own rules for snobbery.

"Tech Teacher Defines His Stand as Meaning "One Who Realizes Higher Things in Life Are Best"

(c) (or [illegible] 1931 by the Boston Evening American

This is the latest urge by Prof. Robert E. Rogers of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology—the man who made snobbery famous—as outlined exclusively today to the Boston Evening American.

And don't misunderstand Prof. Rogers' conception of a snob. It is apart from the popular conception that has to do with a conceited, false-valued person.

COLLEGE NOT NEEDED

Prof. Rogers believes the true snob is one who elevates himself from a lesser position in life to a higher one, because he realizes that the higher things are best.

You don't have to go to college to be a snob, Prof. Rogers asserts, because true snobbery can be cultivated and nurtured in the home in the office—or anywhere else at all. It depends entirely on the individual, and it is the professor's opinion that snobbery is being practiced in many homes and has become quite the thing since his famous "snob speech" of several months ago.

HAS A FORMULA

For home consumption he has formulated a list of 10 major precepts to be followed if one would become a full-fledged snob.

You must develop a will to be superior and you must determine to improve in speech, manners and social position. You should choose the best in music, fiction, drama and general entertainment and you should develop a critical sense of values

"Learning how to become a snob," said Prof. Rogers, "is the combination of two things, partly knowledge and partly the will to be superior.

LOVE BY REASON

"Marrying the boss' daughter was a short cut in dealing with a most unjustified question, and it started this whole controversy on the advisability of becoming a snob.

"It was an attempt to point out a thoroughly unreal and sentimental and superstitious attitude, popularized by our modern fiction and films."

Chiefly—for it is the crowning point in most people's lives, according to the professor—a man should realize that it is just as easy to fall in love with a girl of inherited culture and means, as with a girl having not these characteristics

"Love American trial in love at first sight and romantic love in general," said the professor, "a love unjustified by reason, is the cause of a great deal of our divorce trouble.

"The attitude of our popular fiction and films is a thoroughly unreal, sentimental and superstitious one. In the average film the working girl is invariably the paragon of all excellence, and the girl of inherited wealth and culture is invariably either a fool or is insincere and mercenary, or immoral.

"Any such conception reiterated as continuously, comes to be popular belief, which is obviously absurd and untrue."

How to Be a Snob

Snobbery can be cultivated in the home.

Develop the will to be superior.

It's just as easy to fall in love with a girl of inherited culture and means as with anyone else.

"Determine to improve in speech, manners and social position.

Take a deliberate attitude toward political, religious, social and philosophical questions.

Avoid judging by movie standards, which are false.

Remember—snobs are all made, not born.

EMPLOYMENT CENSUS BEGINS

More than 4000 enumerators in 21 key cities in Massachusetts today began taking a new employment census at the special request of President Hoover's emergency relief committee

From the Boston office 153 enumerators are working under direction of Louis B. Sensale in the 22 wards of the city.

The questions being asked are virtually the same as those asked in the census last April, except for one new question:

"Has this person been in this city more than four months?"

The enumerators will visit every building in the city except hospitals seeking to report exact employment records, which will be sent direct to the committee in Washington.

If, as supposed, conditions are shown to be worse than they were last April in regard to unemployment, it is believed President Hoover immediately will petition Congress for a special relief bill

The compensation for taking this census is two cents for each family visited and six cents for each person represented as unemployed.

Casassa Cleared in Cafe Permit Fight

Mayor Andrew A. Casassa of Revere yesterday was exonerated of any improper motive or influence in connection with the refusal of the licensing board to grant a common victualler's license to Mrs. Madelena Cavana at 424-426 Ocean ave., Revere.

This finding was made by Richard M. Walsh as auditor, appointed by the Supreme Judicial Court on the petition for a writ of mandamus to compel the licensing board to grant the license.

THREE FIREMEN SUSPENDED

In a communication addressed to Chief Engineer Joseph A. Cribbin of the Somerville fire department which will be read in fire stations at roll-call today, Mayor John J. Murphy decrees that Driver William G. Reynolds and Tillerman Horace D. Snow of Ladder 4, and Hoseman Harold L. Connery of Hose 7, assigned to the Highland ave. fire station, charged by Lieut. $50 Weekly for News and Picture Tips

Do you want to get money for being alert? If so, the Boston Evening American offers the opportunity. Each week $50 in prizes will be given for news and picture tips telephoned into the News-Tip Editor, at Liberty 4000.

And what is a news tip? It's the information that something of interest to Greater Bostonians has taken place or will take place. Do you know, for instance, that an interesting picture is to be obtained, that an accident or an unusual event has happened, that there is going to be a business merger? That's a news tip. If you have a camera, take a picture of some news event, while it is happening. Pictures of unusual animal poses are wanted, too. Bring your action pictures to the American quick. Delay often spoils them for use in the American.

There will be $15 given weekly for the best or an unusual event news tip received; $10 for the next best; $5 for the next best, and $2 prizes for each of the 10 next most valuable tips. Of course, the first one who turns in the tip in an interesting event receives the award on that particular item. Anyone who is alive and alert can win.

OLD POLICY MUST CEASE GOVERNOR ASSERTS

Tel's Middlesex Bar Association "Pay-as-You-Go Plan" Hampers Relief

A slash in the normal construction program or an increase in taxes must result unless Massachusetts abandons the time-honored pay-as-you-go method of financing public works and new highways, Governor Ely told the Middlesex Bar Association at the Parker House last night.

The statement was made by the governor during a plea for support of his proposed building measure. His plan he classified as a "conservative measure

The governor asserted that two years have taught that it must abandon the "fantastic yardsticks" by which certain financiers and taxesmen have been measuring things during recent years

HAMPERS PROGRESS

He said this nation never would have progressed to its present position upon a strict pay-as-you-go plan; that there would have been no railroads now, and no public utilities

He said that it was planned to finish the normal two-and-one-half-year building program before next winter to take advantage of lowered construction costs and labor which is efficient

The money which would be spent the following year on a considerable portion of that year's usual building work will at that time be available to retire a portion of the loan which the administration is now seeking

MUST ACT NOW

"I don't think we can ever get anywhere just saving how sound the country is, and, when the pinch comes, refusing to do anything about it," the governor declared.

"We are sound. Our institutions are sound. Fundamentally our business conditions are sound. We're the country which we were two years ago except that we've learned that conservative rules must be applied.

"This is the time for America to go to work. When we recover from this slump we may find it necessary to revamp some of our traditions distributing the earnings of labor. We must find a more equitable distribution of the profits of the work that America proposes to do.

LAUDS CO-OPERATION

"We face an unusual situation here. And I wish to pay my respects to the president of the Senate and the speaker of the House for their co-operation today in passing a measure for the immediate relief of unemployment. It was a wonderful thing for them to do.

"But if you had seen the applicants crowding the State House as soon as the news became known that there was some prospect of immediate passage of a measure to provide employment you could have had no doubt that what we did today was not enough to meet the emergency which confronts us tonight. We need to express in definite terms assurance that we will provide assistance."

SMITH MOURNS WITH CURLEY

About 100 letters of condolence were delivered to Mayor Curley's office in the first mail today. Among them was one from former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York dated yesterday, which read

"It was considerable of a shock to me to hear only this morning of the death of your eldest son. I would have been among the first to wire the sincere sympathy of all my family had I known about it. Will you, therefore, please convey to all the members of your family the sympathy of Mrs. Smith, the children and myself."

Another letter was from James E. Daley, chairman of the Democratic committee of New York, who said

"It was with sincere regret that I noted the account of the death of your son and wish to extend to you a heartfelt sympathy."

Mayor in Second Visit to Cemetery

Mayor Curley quietly made his second visit to Old Calvary Cemetery in Roslindale yesterday, over the burial on Monday of his son James, Jr.

Upon returning to his Jamaicaway home after his visit to the cemetery the mayor for about two hours signed important official documents

Today he will work at home on municipal matters and it is probable that he will return tomorrow to City Hall. From former President and Mrs. Calvin Coolidge, who lost their youngest son suddenly during his administration at Washington, the mayor yesterday received a message of warm sympathy.

Robert W. Thomson, Lynn Inventor, Dead

Robert W. Thomson, noted inventor of shoe manufacturing machinery, at one time associated with the late Sidney W. Winslow, and a former park and library trustee of Lynn, died in his home, 411 Broadway, that city, yesterday. Funeral services will be Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, in charge of the Rev. Charles W. Squires of the First Presbyterian Church.

WELFARE WORKER TELLS ABOUT GIRLS AND DRINKING AT RITZ

SAW WAITERS POUR LIQUOR INTO GLASSES ON TABLES

The first witness called at the Garrett trial today was Mrs. Mabel S. Worcester, social welfare worker, of the Franklin Square House, South End. Assistant District Attorney Frederick T. Doyle took her for direct examination.

Q—Did you ever have occasion to visit the Hotel Ritz on Columbus ave? A—Yes, on Feb 25, 1928.

Q—Will you relate what happened while you were there? A—I went into the rathskeller of the Hotel Ritz about 10.30 that evening. I saw evidence of drinking there. There were bottles on the floor under some of the tables containing liquids of different colors and from time to time waiters would pour the liquor from the bottles into glasses on the tables. I saw girls come in there alone, passed around from one man to another for dances. At some tables I saw glasses, not ginger ale glasses, and there was considerable drinking all the time I was there. I saw men and women matched up and they would withdraw and go upstairs.

Doyle: 'That is all.'

SAW FIVE GIRLS

Atty. Callahan took her for cross examination.

Q—Do you recall testifying before Mr Warner that you saw a man tip a bottle over and, after a girl with whom he was sitting became incensed, and that as a result a waiter took her over to another table where she sat with another man? A—Yes.

Q—And you saw a good deal of other introducing by waiters of girls to men? A—Yes.

Q—And you saw them withdraw and go upstairs, not outdoors? A—Yes.

Q—What proportion of unattached young ladies were there? A—I think there were five women unattached and about 30 people in all present.

Q—Do you remember a young woman coming in alone? A—Yes.

Q—And after a short time she was introduced by a waiter to a man? A—There were usually conferences between the waiters and the girls before the introduction.

GIRLS WERE YOUNG

Q—How long were you there? A—Two hours.

Q—What would you say the ages of these girls were? A—I suppose between 22 and 25.

Q—Were there any younger than that? A—I think the girl who became incensed at the bottle tipping was younger.

She was excused.

Miss Florence H. Luscomb of 11 Ashford st., Allston, was the next witness. She said she was a social service worker and secretary to a state social service organization

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle asked her if in 1928 she visited the Ritz Hotel. Her answer was "Yes."

WHAT SHE SAW

Q—What were your observations? A—I went to the Ritz with others in March, 1928. We got there shortly after 8 p. m. We saw considerable drinking going on. We noticed a number of men and girls present in the dining room. They had flasks. We saw waiters carrying glasses.

A police sergeant, in uniform came to the door, with a man in plain clothes. He made himself very conspicuous as he remained at the door for some time. We were terribly impressed by the number of young girls, unaccompanied. We noticed one of the girls get up from a booth and go to a table where there was a man. A small amount of food was served and one of our party saw the check and the total was $9.95. One man became very disorderly.

He got into a fight. The waiters separated the men, but later the same men attempted to make another scene. One young girl made herself conspicuous. She became loud and shrill and at one time when she went to the table of another party she had to steady herself while walking. I would say that she was under the influence of liquor.

GIRLS IN TEENS

Q—You said some of the girls were very young. How old were they? A—In their low teens.

Q—Did you notice any young girls coming in unaccompanied? A—Yes, about 1.15 a. m.

The witness was dismissed.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Doyle explained he was offering them as samples of Garrett's handwriting.

McDevitt Describes Hunt for Garrett in Franklin House

He was followed by Deputy Supt. James McDevitt, who also identified Garrett's signature. Under cross-examination by Atty. Callahan, McDevitt told of going to the Franklin home of Garrett in a search for the latter and to examine the house.

McDevitt said he examined the kitchen of the Franklin house and did not recollect that a cupboard in the kitchen was an old-fashioned one. It would be possible for a body to be hidden.

Q—Did you find any entrance from the cupboard which led up under the eaves of the house? A—No.

Q—Did you search the eaves? A—No.

Atty. Gallagher then took him and asked, "I want to find out why you examined the house? A—In consequence of a newspaper story that there was a hiding place there.

Q—Did you find such a place? A—There was sort of hiding place there.

Q—But the place you found did not correspond with the place described in the newspapers? A—No.

Q—You wouldn't want to say there was no such hiding places there? A—No.

McDevitt was excused.

CALLINAN CALLED

J. Edward Callinan, Newton real estate man, was the next witness. He said he knew the three defendants and that he first saw Miss Hatch at 197 Tremont st, Newton.

Q—You had conversations with Mrs. Garrett? A—Yes.

Q—What did she say? A—I think she said Mr. Garrett had sent her for the rent? (Objection overruled and exception noted.)

Q—Did you talk to Mrs. Garrett with reference to the property at 197 Tremont st? Callahan and Gallagher objected and Judge Keating ruled that the witness might give the substance of what

The Extra Cough Help Extra In Power And Price

Creomulsion is a super-help for coughs from colds. It is for deep coughs where you dare not risk a weak help. Seven major helps are embodied in it, including the best known to medical science.

The creosote is blended, emulsified and palatable. It is to soothe the membranes and combat the germs. It presents the world's best help for coughs of this kind in a pleasant form.

There are white pine tar, wild cherry bark, menthol, ipecac, etc. All the greatest helps in one, but with no narcotic. Despite all its power and efficiency, it is harmless to a child.

Instead of a dozen cough helps, ask for one help, some one that is right. Ask for one help, some another. Nobody can tell. So we combine the best in Creomulsion to be safe and reliable. Creomulsion costs $1.25—a little more than lesser helps. But all druggists guarantee it and return the full price to anyone not satisfied.

It may be too good for your cough. A lesser help might serve. But is it wise to take the risk when coughs are danger signals? Anyway, a cough from a cold which hangs on calls for this super-help. Do the best men know, to be sure.

Garrett Trial Witness

SYDNEY FIELDS, former clerk at the Hotel Ritz, who testified yesterday at Garrett trial that he made payments for John F. Sullivan to Lillian V. Hatch. (Staff photo.)

Q—When the Tremont st. property was sold how much did she pay you? A—$1400.

MORTGAGE PAID

Q—Do you recall that $2900 were paid in discharge of the second mortgage? A—Yes.

Q—How many payments were made? A—I believe $500 at the end of six months and the balance was paid at the end of the year by check.

Q—As to the property in Fayette st., how much money was paid at the passing of the papers? A—$2500.

The witness said he visited some Hingham property of Mrs. Garrett at her request and handled insurance on it at about the same time.

Atty. Callahan then took him for cross examination.

Q—Mrs. Garrett first met you at our home and inquired about this property at 197 Tremont st? A—Yes.

Q—And the $1400 she paid on that property was on her own check? A—Yes.

Q—The vacant lot in the next deed was bought for $16000, $1000 mortgage, a deposit of $100 and Mrs. Garrett's check for $500 given to you at the time the papers were passed? A—Yes.

Q—Now on this Fayette st. property, sold in July, 1928, you talked her into buying that property, didn't you? A—I brought it to her attention.

Q—The purchase price was $12,000, $3000 second mortgage, $4500 first mortgage, $2400 in cash and $100 deposit? A—Yes.

Q—And the $2400 was paid to you by check from Mrs. Garrett? A—Yes.

Q—And shortly after you sold her that property you disposed of it for her, didn't you? A—Yes.

Q—What was the selling price? A—$12,900.

Q—Mrs. Garrett held the property for a year and sold it at a $900 profit? A—Yes.

Callahan conferred with Mrs Garrett, sitting at the rail. Returning to the witness, he asked "Didn't she tell you that the income was not paying her and she couldn't afford to keep it? A—She did say she could use the money she had invested in the place.

$2511 IN CASH

Callinan testified that Mrs. Garrett actually received in cash $2,511.50, after insurance and mortgage interest adjustments had been made. Callinan then was excused.

Patrick C McMahon of 1081 Washington st., West Newton, builder, was the next government witness called.

Q—Do you know Mrs. Garrett? A—Yes.

Q—Did you have a conversation with Mrs. Garrett about building a garage? A—Yes, on the vacant lot next to 197 Tremont st.

Q—How much did it cost? A—$1100.

Q—Did she pay you? A—Eventually.

HUGE ALCOHOL THEFT FOILED

A bold attempt to steal several hundred gallons of alcohol from the plant of the Potter Drug & Chemical Co. in Malden early today was foiled by the arrival of police to arrest a man next door for non-support.

After overpowering the night watchman, Patrick Herbert, and holding him under guard in the boiler room, the robbers fled when they saw the police.

According to Watchman Herbert he had just completed his 4 o'clock round when, on entering the boiler room, he was confronted by three men.

One threw a coat over his head and a second seized his arms. When the coat was removed Herbert faced a gun held by one robber, who guarded Herbert, while the other two went up to the third floor where the alcohol shipments are received.

One of the men looked out a window, and saw police leaving an automobile in front of the plant, which is in Green st. They had come with a warrant for the arrest of Charles Singleton, who lives next door, for non-support. The robber shouted to his companions and all fled.

FALSE ADDRESS CAUSES DELAY

The fatal delay in the response of a City Hospital ambulance to a call for the late Robert Barnes of Kirkland st., South End, was due to a mistake in the address, the hospital trustees reported today.

The report, made to Mayor Curley and transmitted by him to the City Council, was in response to a demand for an investigation by Councillor Robert Gardner Wilson, Jr., of Dorchester.

Wilson charged that a physician called for an ambulance to remove Barnes to the hospital, but when it arrived some hours later he was dead.

Council Aide Freed of Assault Charges

Thomas W. McMahon, former city councillor and at present document clerk for the city council, was found not guilty before Judge Michael H. Sullivan in Dorchester district court today on a charge of assault and battery brought by his mother-in-law, Mrs. Rose Chambers.

Mrs. Chambers said McMahon grabbed her by the neck and dragged her around his house on Westville st., Dorchester, Jan. 3, and then put her and his wife out of the house.

Gallagher Aims at 'Lame Duck' Sessions

Resolutions memorializing Congress for an amendment to the Constitution to abolish "lame duck" session of Congress were filed today with the Legislature by Rep Owen A. Gallagher of Dorchester.

Terms of the President and Vice-President would begin on Jan 13, instead of March 4, and the National Senate and House members-elect would take their seats on Jan. 2, following election.

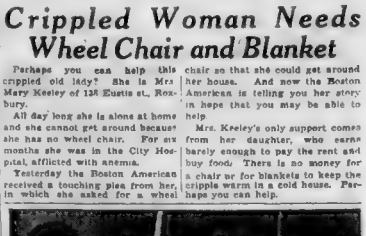
Crippled Woman Needs Wheel Chair and Blanket

Perhaps you can help this crippled old lady? She is Mrs Mary Keeley of 138 Eustis st., Roxbury.

All day long she is alone at home and she cannot get around because she has no wheel chair. For six months she was in the City Hospital, afflicted with anemia.

Yesterday the Boston American received a touching plea from her, in which she asked for a wheel chair so that she could get around her house. And now the Boston American is telling you her story in hope that you may be able to help.

Mrs. Keeley's only support comes from her daughter, who earns barely enough to pay the rent and buy food. There is no money for a chair or for blankets to keep the cripple warm in a cold house. Perhaps you can help.



FEEL MEAN?

Don't be helpless when you suddenly get a headache. Reach in your pocket for immediate relief. If you haven't any Bayer Aspirin with you, get some at the first drugstore you come to. Take a tablet or two and be rid of the pain. Take promptly. Nothing is gained by waiting to see if the pain will leave of its own accord. It may grow worse! Why postpone relief?

There are many times when Bayer Aspirin will "save the day." It will always ease a throbbing head. Quiet a grumbling tooth. Relieve nagging pains of neuralgia or neuritis.

Check a sudden cold. Even rheumatism has lost its terrors for those who have learned to depend on these tablets.

Gargle with Bayer Aspirin at the first suspicion of sore throat, and reduce the infection. Look for Bayer on the box—and the word Genuine in red. Genuine Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart.

ACTION VOTED ON FEDERAL PROPOSAL

Public Hearings Will Be Demanded Here to Avert Boost in Schedule

Boston Chamber of Commerce will demand a full investigation with public hearings, on the proposed increase in parcel post rates scheduled to take effect July 1, it was announced today.

The executive committee has approved the joint action of the Chamber's Committees on Postal Facilities and Transportation in protesting any action by the Interstate Commerce Commission without a hearing.

The Postmaster General has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to increase and revise parcel post rates, and the public given opportunity to file objections in writing.

GOW'S NEW PLAN.

The demand for a hearing on parcel post rates followed Postmaster Charles R. Gow's announcement that plans are being drawn for a new Boston postoffice in part of the present South Station terminal building.

The new development in the local postal situation will result in the new Federal building post station becoming a sub-station. Postmaster Gow has notified Washington he has already leased 20 per cent of the space in the proposed new Postoffice sq. building.

By the new plan, a radical departure from the original, the Burlington ave., Back Bay and South Station postal stations will be abandoned at an estimated annual saving of more than $200,000.

TWO WORKSHOPS

Various sub-stations throughout the city will also be either abandoned or moved to smaller quarters. The plans also call for the construction of two postal workshops, one at Harvard sq. and the other at the Ashmont station in Dorchester, with special mail cars running through the Cambridge-Dorchester subway.

Under this plan the proposed central workshop will be the actual central postoffice and the other workshops will be auxiliaries. The building to be erected in Postoffice Sq., will be used for the sale of stamps, postal money orders and the receipt of mail for adjacent business houses.

Policeman Dangles From Rope to Rescue Youth

Lowering himself 30 feet by a rope, Patrolman Charles H. Hendrickson of the Metropolitan police today rescued a Revere youth from drowning, after the latter leaped from the Malden st. bridge, over Revere Beach parkway, in Everett.

Lawrence P. Frangipane, 21, of Park ave., Revere, was the youth rescued. He was taken to Massachusetts General hospital suffering from immersion.

600 BUSY ON AUTO SHOW

Six hundred men, including decorators, painters, artists, carpenters, electricians and other skilled workers, are busily engaged in preparing Mechanics Building for the Auto Show which opens Saturday afternoon. The huge building has become an industrial community in itself, the workmen representing a score or more different trades.

Boston's unemployed are being materially aided by the work, and in addition the amounts of material necessary for the hall helps other industries. Over 5000 square yards of fine carpet is being laid in Exhibition Hall. In order to secure so large an amount, Chester I. Campbell, director of the show, took the entire output of a Connecticut rug factory for a three-months period.

DRIVER ROBBED AFTER CRASH

After being forced off the road through a fence and almost into the Charles river in Waltham today, Earl Ramsden of Freeman st., Auburndale, was carried away in the other machine and robbed of $60, according to his story to the police.

Finding nobody injured in the vicinity, they checked up on the registration number and located Ramsden.

He told the police that he was knocked unconscious by the crash and that when he came to he was beside the driver of the other car, and was on the Worcester road, somewhere in Sudbury.

"I saw he was drunk and I pulled up the emergency brake and leaped out," said Ramsden. "Then I discovered my pockets had been picked. I was picked up by a State policeman and taken to the nearest barracks, where I made a full report of the case."

GIRL AND 2 HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Three Bostonians, including a 17-year-old girl, are under arrest in Springfield today, charged with larceny of an automobile and possessing a loaded revolver.

They are Mrs Gertrude Ford of Worcester st., her husband Charles Ford, and Joseph McIntyre, 26, of Casenove st., Rees Bay.

A blinking headlight on the car they admitted stealing on Homeaway st., Boston, yesterday, resulted in their arrest in Springfield. After stopping them, Springfield police became suspicious of the action of Mrs Ford in the rear seat.

Further investigation revealed a loaded revolver near Mrs Ford Ford's coat pockets were filled with bullets, police said.

Mrs. Ford is now on probation after her arrest for larceny in Somerville in May, 1930. Her husband admitted two arrests and McIntyre one.

Ford pleaded guilty when arraigned in Springfield Municipal Court. His wife and McIntyre pleaded not guilty. All were remanded to jail in lieu of $3000 bail each.

Freedman Hits at Forgery in Trial

He promised to produce his books to back up his statements. He is on trial before Judge Lowell and a jury.

Sallies Here Have Fed 65,260 Free

The Salvation Army has served 65,260 free meals to jobless men since November 6 when an emergency food kitchen was opened at the People's Palace, Col. Joseph Atkinson announced today. This total represents an average daily service of nearly 1000 meals.

Prior to November 6, hungry men applying for food were sent to nearby restaurants. Unemployment and the approach of cold weather, however, made it necessary to establish an Army food station where meals could be given to those unable to find work.

Cemetery Flower Thief Is Fined $25

The chicken thief is mean, the poor box thief is meaner, but the thief who steals flowers from a grave is the meanest thief of all, according to Judge Harold P. Williams in Suffolk Superior court today.

He then characterized John De Angelus, 40, of Mount Hope st., Roslindale, charged with stealing two baskets of flowers from a grave in Forest Hills Cemetery as "the meanest thief ever to appear before him," and fined him $25.

The bill seeks an annual appropriation of $250,000 with the Governor appointing publicity and advertising experts for two-year terms at $15,000 a year.

SIX WOMEN ARE VICTIMS OF 'SLUGGER'

Cambridge Terror Spreads as Police Hunt Assailant of Teacher and Others

The "phantom slugger" who has terrorized the Brattle sq. section of Cambridge was the objective in a widespread man hunt today, after attacking four women last night, raising his total to six since Sunday.

Despite police vigilance and radio warnings, the mysterious assailant of women who sometimes wields a club or iron bar, made his appearance twice in the same district, escaping after a chase.

A drunken man, picked up later, was held for further investigation and for scrutiny by victims of the slugger.

FOUR NEW VICTIMS

The latest victims were Mrs. J H. Allen of 15 Mt. Auburn st., her sister, and two girls, 17 and 19, living in Franklin st., whose names were withheld by police.

Mrs. Allen, a teacher in Cambridge High and Latin School, and her sister, were on their way home from a theatre. As they turned into Mt. Auburn st., the women noticed they were being followed by a tall man.

Hurrying to their door they started to enter when the man ran up and seized Mrs. Allen. She and her sister screamed and both attacked the man with fists and fingernails.

POLICE SEARCH FAILS.

Police of the Brattle sq. station were summoned, and with volunteers searched the district but without success. "The women's attacker was described as being about 30 years old, 145 to 155 pounds, six feet tall and wearing a light coat and hat.

Hardly had the search ended when police were called to Massachusetts ave. and Hancock st., where two girls reported they had been attacked.

Job Wanted! And He Means Not Maybe

FATHER 'SIGNS UP' FOR JOB

William H Anderson of South Peabody erected a sign reading, "Wanted: Information leading to the capture of a job by a father of ——," on the country road near his home, because he found that walking four miles to Peabody and back made him so hungry he ate the family out of house and home."

"This was his explanation today of the unique method he is trying to secure work after being unemployed for the eight months.

"By the time I tramped all over looking for work and walked the eight miles to and from my house to the Peabody station, I was so hungry that it took all the food in the house to satisfy me," Anderson explained.

He is a mechanic by trade and handy at many things. He made his own sign, eight by four feet, after the miniature golf course he had laid out flopped.

The children, aged three to six teen, are Ruth, Ralph, William Henry, Jr., Elint Robert Calvin who is named after Coolidge; Eleanor and Gladys.

MALONEY-CARNERA MANAGERS MEET

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1931

JIM MALONEY SUSPENDED BY RING BOARD

New York, Jan. 15 (US) New York's boxing commission adopted its first retaliatory measure against the rebellious Madison Square Garden Corporation at the semi-weekly meeting.

Although it was not made public officials of the Garden were notified that everyone connected with the promotion of the Max Schmeling-Young Stribling and Primo Carnera matches must be refused admission to future boxing bouts staged at the Garden.

Also, Jimmy Maloney, Boston heavyweight, and his manager, Dan Carroll, were suspended. Maloney engaged in a match with Carnera about two months ago.

In the event that any of the banned boxers or managers were seen at a future Garden match the Garden was warned that its license would be suspended. Secretary Joe Stand was instructed to send a telegram to each club in the State.

The ruling which the commission has been working on for the past few months was finally put into effect after Garden officials had been unable to get Maloney and Carroll to sign contracts for a match with Paulino Uzcudun, Basque heavyweight, who is booked to appear at the Garden next week. Maloney and Carroll refused to sign the contracts unless they were guaranteed a match with Carnera.

Duffy has announced that he would not allow Maloney to meet Uzcudun.

Joe Jacobs, manager of Schmeling, and Hilbert Aaronson, representative of Carnera, have promised to sign contracts for matches with Maloney and Carroll next week. Jacobs has agreed to accept 25 per cent of the receipts of the Schmeling-Stribling match, which will be staged in Chicago in June. Aaronson has agreed to accept 25 per cent of the receipts of the Carnera-Maloney match, which will be staged in Miami, Fla., next month.

Paulino Uzcudun Hit by N. Y. Edict

In addition to these two matches which would be banned Jim Maloney and Dan Carroll would not be allowed to participate in any bouts which might be staged in New York State.

The decision to ban Maloney and Carroll from the Garden was made by the commission after Duffy had refused to sign contracts for a match between Maloney and Uzcudun.

The commission took note of the fact that Maloney had been matched to meet Uzcudun in the Boston Garden but that Carroll refused to sign articles for the match until the bout was transferred to the Garden in New York. Carroll finally signed the articles after the bout had been transferred to the Garden

Minor Leagues Lose Out in Baseball Draft Conflict

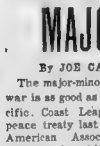
TREATIES ARE SIGNED WITH MAJORS

By JOE CASHMAN

The major-minor leagues draft war is as good as over. The Pacific Coast League signed a peace treaty last week and the American Association, after hoisting the white flag a few weeks back and then pulling it down, has surrendered for the second time.

The International League still remains on the field of battle but will withdraw, gracefully or otherwise, in the very near future.



Joe Cashman

There will be nothing left of the conflict but a memory when spring training starts, a month hence.

It is apparent now that the minors didn't have the ammunition to defeat the majors when they declared war and showed very poor judgment in refusing to arbitrate the draft question.

Before the fight started, the Class AA leagues had far more power in the baseball world than their strength warranted. They would threaten war whenever any of their demands were refused and would usually end up by getting more than they deserved and more than the majors desired to give them.

Majors Thought Peace Profitable

It wasn't that the majors feared a conflict, but they figured peace more profitable and were willing to go to extremes to prevent any dissension in the professional baseball family.

In the draft controversy, for example, they forgot a lot of their original demands to satisfy the minors, but the little fellows, not knowing when they were well off, decided to fight.

Without spending a cent of money or an ounce of energy, the majors have forced them to quit, and from now on it will probably be just too bad for the minors.

The majors having discovered that war is more profitable than compromise, will dictate to and not arbitrate with them, as has been the custom, and any league that may threaten to fight will be told, even urged, to go right ahead.

The majors will order and the minors will obey hereafter.

Simmons and Kline Sign With Red Sox

Secretary Hi Mason of the Red Sox announced today that the signed contracts of Pat Simmons and Bob Kline, young pitchers, had been received at Fenway Park.

Both youngsters have received tryouts with the Sox and have shown promise of eventually becoming good big league hurlers.

Kline is a giant of the Fenway finck, being six feet, three inches tall and weighing 190 pounds. He first joined the Sox last spring and was farmed out to Erie, where he won 23 games and lost only nine. Next spring will be Simmons' fourth with the club. He won four and lost the same number at Quincy, Ill., last season.

TECH SWIMMERS IN ACTION

The M. I. T. freshman swimming team will meet the strong Hunting ton Prep natators in the Y. M C A. pool tomorrow night.

Under the direction of Coach Russell Dean, the M. I. T. yearlings have been holding practice three times a week in the University club pool.

Last Saturday the Engineers won an easy victory over the Malden high school mermen. In the last practice at the University Club pool, the freshman relay team defeated the varsity by several yards.

The Huntington school team boasts several well known local swimming stars and should provide a busy evening for the Beaver yearlings.

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

Although it is only on rare occasions that officials are "panned" unjustly, Mickie Ion and Jerry Goodman did "take the rap" for the timers in the Bruin-Ranger game at the Garden. It was the duty of the timers to stop the play by ringing the bell when the Bruins had seven men in action.

The generous alloting of assists has reached such an acute stage that the fans are now only interested in who scores the goals in nine quarters, only players who have not been properly introduced to the scorers, are ineligible.

If Frankie Spain and Dick Mc Hugh remain in college, Dartmouth will have a couple of real hockey players to boast of next season. Spain started his hockey at Newton high while McHugh was one of the best goalies that ever guarded the nets for Melrose high.

Harry Oliver has been playing exactly the same type of hockey ever since he joined the Bruins but no opponent has been able to check him to such an extent as to indicate that the great Bruin wing was bottled up. Incidentally, "Sam" is playing the best hockey of his career right now and is the most effective right winger in the N. H. L.

When the "fanning" drifts around to speed boys in the N H. L. don't fail to mention one Paul Thompson of the New York Rangers. Paul made the speed boys of the Bruins appear slow and sluggish by comparison.

Although Sammy McAdam is a left hand shot, for years he has served as a right wing. Sammy has a quick shift to get off a shot and looks like a fine prospect for Lester Patrick.

Boston is entitled to, and can support, more major league hockey. An N. H. L. club here that never emerged from last place would outgross the combined receipts of Philadelphia and Ottawa by a wide margin.

Apparently Bill Regan and Frank Peters are beginning to receive some recognition from the New York Rangers. Regan and Peters, alumni of the Can.-Am. loop, are getting into action regularly, which is positive proof that they have met with the approval of Manager Lester Patrick.

Sometime in the dim future, some clear thinking research delver is going to hit upon the discovery that there is a close tieup between the New York Americans and the Philadelphia Quakers. That is, of course, if Bill Dwyer's subordinates don't break him in the meantime.

A move is under way whereby the Senators of Ottawa will transfer all of their home games to the Boston Garden. The Canadian capital is not a major league city and the owners of the Ottawa club are hopelessly in the "red."

From the secrecy surrounding the appearance of Frank Calder here, one might be led to suspect he was a gumshoe detective instead of the president of the National Hockey League.

CARIDEO SAYS PSYCHOLOGY WON BIG TILTS

South Bend, Ind., Jan. 15 (AP)—Psychology is the thing in football. Take it from Frank Carideo, Notre Dame's mighty little dynamo and field general.

And if that isn't enough authority, ask one Southern California Trojans, the Tartans of Carnegie Tech and a few other really great football teams who felt victims of one of the shrewdest football psychologists the pigskin industry has known.

"There's no doubt that we had a great team in 1928 and 1930," the square shouldered generalissimo of the Rockne Raiders said in backtracking those memorable gridiron campaigns.

"Yet I often wonder how many games we would have won and lost if old man psychology hadn't worked for us on an overtime basis through the insistence of that master psychologist, Knute Rockne. It pulled us out—on top—of a little after battle when sheer football ability failed.

"Promptly we were just too good for Southern California last fall, but I give psychology the credit. We used it before the game, during the game and even when we had the victory salted away.

"Never in my football career was I more confident than of beating the Trojans last fall. And all the boys were of the same opinion. But when tales filtered into South Bend of Southern California's confidence of a one-sided victory we decided that to win we must get in the right psychological frame at the right psychological second. So we, or I should say Coach Rockne, gave them the buildup while we worked in the that mental construction down in a hurry.

Surprise Play Beat Trojans

"At the start of the game we decided, first of all, to do the unexpected at all times. The boys, keyed to a fighting pitch, got the ball and gave the Trojans the shock of their lives. We hammered with all our strength right at the start and amazed them by shoving them right back to their own goal. A few minutes later, they fumbled on their own 20-yard line and we realized the win-or-lose minute had come.

"Now a fumble always disorganizes a team for the instant, so I decided on a bold stroke. Instead of driving safely at the line, I called for a pass. The ball was snapped, the Trojans lined up in their zone of greatest intensity, watched for a line smash or an end run, but Marchy Swartz dropped back and flipped an easy pass to me for a touchdown. The blow stunned Southern California and they were beaten.

"We beat Carnegie Tech about the same way. We did the unexpected at the unexpected time. That's the way they beat us in 1928, knocking us groggy with a pass on the first play deep in their own territory.

"My advice to a quarterback is to watch the faces of your opponents. Watch their reaction to your plays and then cross 'em up with the same plays through a different spot. Set plays don't always go."

Burke Badly Hurt in Tilt With Reds

Eddie Burke, Tiger hockey star did not suffer a broken jaw in the game against the Rhode Island Reds last night, as was first believed, according to physicians at the Peter Bent Brigham hospital where the player was rushed after the battle in Providence.

Burke however received a cut on the chin which required several stitches to close. He then went through his lower p and he received a sad bump on the head. He will be in retirement in the hospital for a few days and will be out of Saturday night's game.

Gordon Connolly Breaks Swim Record

Huntington school swimming got under way with the second team defeated the Memorial high mermen in the Y. M. C. A. tank by a score of 54½ to 31½. Coach Millard of the Maroon and Black, permitted Gordon Connolly, swimmer Aggie tank star, and holder of the N. E. A. A. U. 50-yard freestyle and 300-yard medley titles to compete in the 100-yard freestyle event.

Dempsey Can Have 6 Months if He Wants Says Sharkey

Jack Sharkey, replying to Jack Dempsey's statement from Baltimore, today declared that the former heavyweight champion can have six months in which to get in condition for a bout with him.

"This, I presume," he said, "was done to slur me by directing attention to the fact that along with 20,000,000 others who had dependents I was not in the war."

He explained how he had tried to get into the navy in 1918 but the armistice was declared before his application with a special provision that he receive extra money for his dependents was arranged.

"In August 1918 while at the Great Lakes Naval training station, I told Lieut. John Kennedy I wanted to get into the navy. He explained to me that if I did I could get extra pay for my dependents. When I learned this I asked Lieut. Kennedy to fix things so that I could get into the navy.

"The papers were sent to the San Francisco draft board by Lieut. Kennedy. There was considerable delay about getting the affair adjusted. I finally got word from Lieut. Kennedy, early in November, 1918, that everything was okay. He told me that the papers would be turned over to Teddy Hayes, then in the navy, and that I should go to Philadelphia, meet Hayes and sign up.

"I went to Philadelphia and stayed at the Adelphia Hotel. Hayes did not arrive on scheduled time. I telephoned Lieut. Kennedy and he said that Hayes and others who were taking the trip to Philadelphia had been delayed but would arrive soon. Hayes and his mates finally got started and were in Steubenville or Youngstown, Ohio, when the armistice was signed.

"That is why I didn't get into the war."

Dempsey Asks Sharkey to Repeat Challenge

Baltimore, Jan. 15 (INS)—Jack Dempsey, here to referee a bout tonight, is in a fighting mood and is eager to deciding to enter the ring once more than he has been since he lost the championship to Gene Tunney.

Here is what he told International News Service today in connection with Jack Sharkey's challenge to fight him for the benefit of charity.

"If Sharkey really is sincere about his challenge I now ask him to repeat it when he reads this. If it is repeated in good faith, and not as a ballyhoo for Sharkey and a chance for him to wave a flag, I will either say yes or answer that should enable Sharkey to decide whether he wants a fight or not.

ELEANOR BOARDMAN SIGNS CONTRACT FOR CECIL B. DE MILLE PICTURE

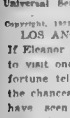
BAXTER IS ALSO IN FILM

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor

Copyright, 1931, Universal Service Inc

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 15—If Eleanor Boardman had time to visit one of the numerous fortune tellers in Hollywood, the chances are she would have seen plenty of good things in store for herself. That is, if there is any truth in the cards or the crystal globes.

Nineteen thirty-one has started off unusually well for the popular wife of King Vidor and among the present happiness is a contract with Cecil De Mille. I don't know what there is about De Mille pictures that has all the players hoping for an opportunity. Maybe because Cecil B. has been he most widely publicized director and because every now and then he comes through with a picture that puts some actor or actress in the headliner class.



Louella O. Parsons

Eleanor plays the aristocratic English girl with whom the hero is always in love. Warner Baxter is the hero, Lupe Velez the Indian girl and that's about all the definite names.

IS THIS TRUE? Has Jack Warner signed Ruth Chatterton, William Powell and George Bancroft for coming First National and Warner Brothers' Pictures? The first time I heard it I laughed and said, "What about the Hays' organization? It isn't possible." The second time I laughed less loudly and the third time I was all ears and asked my informant more data. The William Powell contract is up and so is George Bancroft's, and one of the best known men in filmland, "They go in Warners," Ruth Chatterton's contract only has a short time to run. Looks as if Warner Brothers are out to get a corner on high-powered talent.

• • •

WHEN Edward Robinson, actor, and Mervyn Le Roy, director, finish taking the bows for "Little Caesar" maybe there will be time to talk of something else. Eddie is being brought back on a new contract with Warner Brothers, to be present at the opening of "Little Caesar" Jan. 23. Mervyn has garnered around the New York reviews in his pocket until the press notices are generally readable. Naturally, Warner Brothers are losing no time in putting Mr. Robinson to work. His first under the swell contract is "The Idol" by Rita Rowne. The story is that of an imperial ballet master in Russia and it is plenty strong on the drama. Robert Bonley is the director.

'Charley's Aunt' Comes to Town

CHARLES RUGGLES AND WILSON BENGE
THE EVER POPULAR FARCE, "Charley's Aunt," comes to the RKO Keith's screen today. Charles Ruggles has the title role.

IGOR GORIN IN RECITAL

By MOSES SMITH

Igor Gorin, Austrian baritone, making his American debut at Jordan Hall last night, displayed a voice of great power and magnificent resources. The Georgian organ, heard in the unusually small and placid surroundings of the recital room hall, was so sonorous that it was almost incongruous.

In a program of German and Italian songs, operatic arias in these two languages, and in French as well, and two Jewish songs one in Hebrew, the other in Yiddish Mr. Gorin had sufficient opportunity, as well as provocation, to show the power this voice is capable of attaining. He showed, also, an ability to spin out fine tones, quasi-falsetto, in the manner of a cantor in the synagogue.

To the extent that a naturally musical temperament and ability to sing were important, he was well. When more prepared, not to say intellectual, artistry was required the singer was not successful. Much of his singing smacked of the mercilessly melodramatic. Often he was disconcertingly out of tune, as in the "Vision Fugitive" from Massenet's "Herodiade."

APACHE ACT AT SCOLLAY

After watching Lee and Jean Gail do their Apache act friends warned Jean Gail of peril to her health if she continued to do this dance, in which she is tossed about like a rubber ball. This was some six years ago, and today Jean is stronger and healthier than ever. She is still doing her dance, being featured this week at the Scollay. Her husband, who does the tossing around, claims that total abstinence from smoking and drinking and the keeping of early hours is responsible for their fit condition.

Lee Gail

Toward the end of their dance, Lee Gail tosses Jean with such force that she slides almost half the length of the stage, over the footlights and clear into the orchestra pit.

IF LADY CHRISTIANS had the advantage of Hollywood exploitation, the fans would be rushing to see her on the Repertory screen. She has the looks and lines of Billie Dove, she has the sweetness of Vilma Banky, and has vastly more emotional ability, plus a keen sense of humor. She is the star of "Because I Love You," the Repertory's chief film, and announced as the first "unlimited bid per cent German talking picture."

The story is of the type that really deserves a "nature," that thing which Hollywood strives to produce, because, with its head inside and its smiles, it spells box office success. Mady is an opera star. When she triumphs, her fiance, Hans Rudy, is absent, because he is a doctor with business keeping him away from the theatre. Mady is pestered, one night she falls prey to Walter Jenkins, who has sung his love to her on stage.

In soberer mood Mady repents. Ben marries the doctor, and gives birth to a daughter. Years pass. Then an opera company comes to town; Jenkins forces himself upon her. She refuses his plea. The meeting makes the doctor suspicious; in time there is a divorce. Mady returns to the stage, but loses heart, and finds herself eventually in the chorus. Back to the home town the company again travels; Mady visits the doctor's home by night, and the child lure affects the reconciliation.

That synopsis does not bring out all the good situations, by any means. So good is the direction that the picture overleaps the limitations of language. Further, this pioneer German talkie proves that Continentals were not speaking what Hollywood in general has yet to learn—that the best talkie is that with a minimum of dialogue and a maximum of motion picture values. "Because I Loved You" says it with pictures—the camera tells the story. And tells it trenchantly, beautifully.

Though we hate theme songs, we admit that the love theme in this picture is far above the usual. But much better indeed is Miss Christiani's crooning of the wonderously sweet Brahms "Wiegenlied" (cradle song). But let it be known that Miss Lund is chiefly dramatic, tellingly told with the camera.

The best actors are Miss Christiani, Trude Berliner, Mr. Stone, Hans Sternberg. The minor roles are finely filled.

NIGHT LIFE IN STATE FILM

"One Heavenly Night" opens at Loew's State tomorrow with Evelyn Laye, John Boles, Leon Errol and Lilyan Tashman as principals. The story is concerned with the cabaret and night life of Budapest. It is a thoroughly modern, romantic comedy told in action, dialogue and song.

Evelyn Laye, famous light opera star of the English stage, here makes her American screen bow. For five years it is said, Samuel Goldwyn has had an ardent desire to present Miss Laye in a vehicle worthy of her loveliness, charm, her rich voice, and her art as an outstanding comedienne. Until the advent of sound pictures there was no such possibility; but, when the chance from the silent screen was made, he lost no time in placing the English favorite under contract. In the meantime she had scored success on the stage in "Bitter-sweet," so that her name is not now unfamiliar on this side of the Atlantic.

"A Wonderful Night" at Shubert Tonight

"A Wonderful Night," the Johann Strauss operetta which has been adapted from the celebrated "Die Fledermaus," is to be produced by the Messrs. Shubert in 13 scenes, on the first performance super-revolving stage ever used in Boston, will open at the Shubert tonight. This inauguration is widely advertised "1931 Strauss Ceremonial Tour."

"Charley's Aunt" on Keith's Screen Today

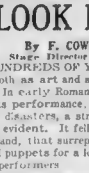
Contrary to the usual Saturday opening day policy, the RKO Keith's announces that the talking picture, "Charley's Aunt," starts its engagement at that house today to continue through Thursday, Jan. 22.

STRICKLAND SEES BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR THEATER

By F. COWLES STRICKLAND
Stage Director of the Copley Players

FOR HUNDREDS OF YEARS, at fairly frequent intervals, the drama both as art and as entertainment, has been seriously threatened. In early Roman days, occasional edicts were issued forbidding its performance, in a reactionary period, following reforms and disasters, a strong taboo against the theater has always been evident. It fell into such disfavor during one period in England, that surreptitious performances were given in "barns," and puppets for a long time usurped the places of men and women performers.

THESE THINGS ARE matters of history and yet they are always those ready and willing to cry "Wolf," when the faintest whisper of the decline of the drama reaches them. My own opinion is that the drama is passing through another formative period, there's been a war. There have been depressions and distractions. But on the whole, the outlook is decidedly encouraging, and something much finer will undoubtedly emerge once the clarifying process is over.



F. Cowles Strickland

We have in America today a small group of vitally worthwhile playwrights. O'Neil has been a striking example, but perhaps in advance of the present dramatic trend. We have Elmer Rice, Philip Barry, George Abbott, Maxwell Anderson, George Kelly and dozens of others, not quite so well known, who have provided the stage with material worthy of it, and of the attention of the public.

• • •

DIRECTING is along different lines, too. No longer does the scenic artist paint the scenery, and the actors and actresses go on and interrupt the continuity every other minute. Seasoned actors and actresses all have something of their own to offer, and the finished product never suffers because they are, during rehearsals, allowed to "express themselves." I don't like to be rude and yet by sympathetic and appreciative listening, I am convinced there's a lot I can get out of it.

• • •

BOSTON HAS BEEN most cordial and responsive since our group opened at the Copley Theater. Certainly there is room for much of optimism here that the drama needs. When we have the material, the players, the audience and the inclination, there's not a reason in the world why the drama should suffer.

Summer stock companies are flourishing; the plays are waiting, the road is on the move. There's absolutely not a reason in the world to be downhearted, and the theater is the logical spot to drive away gloom.

LEADERS LOWER IN WALL ST. DEALINGS

New York, Jan. 15—The stock market broke out of its narrow trading area on the downside to-day.

The extreme stagnation of the market in the previous session, as it endeavored to break away from the downward trend of Monday and Tuesday, encouraged fresh selling, and trading quickened moderately.

RECEIVER FOR OIL.

Isolated strength of some of the rails bolstered the list a little in the late morning, but the decline became emphatic after midday and losses of 3 to 8 points were numerous.

Announcement of the Richfield Oil receivership in the early afternoon was an unsettling influence although the low price of the stock for some time past has been indicative of its difficulties.

Shares losing 3 to 8 points included American Can, Foreign Power, Coca Cola, Air Reduction, Eastman, American Telephone, Allied Chemical and Lambert. Issues losing 2 or more included American Can, Air Reduction, Public Service of N. J., National Biscuit, Electric Power & Light, Johns Manville and American Tobacco B.

U. S. Steel sagged more than a point, going below 160 for the first time since December. Richfield Oil broke more than a point in the early trading to go below 3, 26 more than 1 point, 9 more than 2 points, and the 6 per cent bonds lost 13½ points. Other oils were heavy.

BONDS ARE BETTER.

The action of the share market was contrary to that of the bond list, which picked up under the influence of further easing of credit rates. Time money again sagged with the longer maturities down to the lowest levels of half a century or more.

Call money held at 1½ at the loan desk, with virtually no demand. There was a brisk investment demand for commercial paper, and lower rates were regarded as probable.

Apparent inability of the share market to extend its gain, and unfavorable earnings estimates, were factors in its decline. Automotive & Foreign Power broke soon after the opening in response to talk of expected net for 1930 of only about $1 a share.

The few earnings reports already available, however, have shown a little cheer, particularly American Telephone's net of $10.40 a share, as a preliminary estimate, which is about equivalent to 1929, allowing for the increase in the number of shares.

Western Union reported $9.10 a share, against $13.11 in 1929. The annual dividend is $8. United Fruit reported $4.24, against a dividend requirement of $4, and 1929 net $6.78.

MOTORS' SALES GAIN.

Evidence of the extensive flow of standard stocks into investment portfolios appeared in the report of the floating support of U. S. Steel at the end of the year, which showed a drop of 2,5.422 shares in three months. The extensive distribution of fixed trusts was undoubtedly been an important factor in this showing.

The General Motors December sales report, showing sales to dealers nearly double the like month of 1929, and a large increase in consumer buying, was regarded favorably, but it had little influence marketwise, as the earlier than usual introduction of the low priced line had foreshadowed a similar showing.

The weekly statements of the banks of England and France showed that efforts to check the flow of gold from London had as yet failed to take effect. The British bank lost about $7,500,000 in gold, while French holdings reached still another new peak.

Urges Advertising U. S. Goods in Mexico

Mexico is the country least industrialized by all American countries, manufacturers and exporters, Robert J. Tennace, industrial commissioner of the Toledo, O., Chamber of Commerce, declares.

The one quality necessary to get the business of the Southern republic is sincerity, said Mr. Tennace, urging that American firms extensively advertise their products in Mexico.

Larger Trading in Hide Futures Seen

New York, Jan. 15—Hide futures trading on the New York Hide Exchange has started the year of 1931 with a marked increase in the volume of business. The turnover up to January 13 exceeded the volume for the entire month of January, 1930, and is also greater than the volume during the corresponding period in any month on record.

Money Equals Low for Half Century

Six months time money fell to the lowest rate for nine-seven years and equivalent to the minimum charge for more than a half a century.

Financial Market News, Stocks, Bonds, Commodities and Comment

Many Sincerely Believe So; Forbes Tells Inside 'Morgan Incident

By B. C. FORBES—

New York, Jan. 15—Is there a diabolical "System," operated in Wall st., which can create stock market booms and almost prosperity at will—and then plunge the country into panic whenever the "System" pleases, in order to rig and ruin millions of people?

That there is some such "System," sincerely believed by F. B. C. Forbes many citizens who are neither Communists, Socialists, Bolshevists or anything of that stripe whatsoever, but decent, law-abiding, loyal supporters of America.

First, let us consider specific examples of this belief, then a brief reply.

"I am a New England banker, as are perhaps four fourths of its directors," writes one. "I too had come to Wall Street (and not the real estate world) to invest my personal pocket. That old use this country has to make them collect their dirty money that they have robbed widows and orphans of, and waived stock of every genus on them, they can get their hands on. They don't want a peaceable relation of our social problem that might help the people. They even don't want men in Congress unless they play in their back yard and do their will. That's why they don't want Brookhart or Norris or any Progressive.

"What this country needs is not Wall Street, but another Lincoln to free the people from Wall Street bondage, and if a leader comes up Heaven help them!

The Chicago Pit has dethroned wheat as "King" and substituted corn, but other exchanges have not followed suit. Wheat remains "king" as regards crop values, despite the low quotations. And it is very much more in leadership is importance. The dictionary's definition of corn furnishes further food for conjecture. It reads:

Among those being prominent in political circles is Mayor James M. Curley of Boston has been known as one of the compulsively low bidders in city hall history. Mayor Curley, for example, when contracting plans for operation of the hospital, spent his time in studying a many-volumed history of Ireland, which he read between a deal of maude Colonial history.

Ex-Governor Alvan T. Fuller is also running with indorsed at Boston. This week indicating he will work to the end of March, Councilman Again, he referred to "the march to the State House from Ellis." This Bunkerhill hero's career was considerably preceded by his naming his Guernsey farm near his summer home at Rye, N. H., Bunkerville. Not every one who reads it is aware that Bunkerville was the meadow on the Thames celebrated as the place where King John signed Magna Carta in 1215. Neither are many aware that the Fuller blooded stock is brought over from Nova Scotia from the famous Isle of Guernsey.

Business and financial leaders are interested in traffic problems because they realize that upon proper handling of the traffic speedy is consistent with safety, the comeback of prosperity largely depends. And Governor Allen of Auckland of the New Haven can tell you that the rise and fall of common in the game has been due to the perfection or decline of their systems of transportation. He has the data, and collected back to early Bobbert days.

Just now, instead of solutions of traffic problems, the public is being given by self-styled "experts" a lot of childish interpretations of statistics. We are told, for example that private drivers were largely responsible for the 31,000 auto deaths in 1930. As nearly all the 2,945,200 cars estimated by General Manager Alfred Reeve of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce have been produced in 1930 are obviously privately driven, it is very easy to say that private drivers were largely to blame for accidents in which the responsibility was fixed on the commercial drivers. And the same would be true in connection with the millions of older cars on the highways.

Because gasoline tax receipts have been increased in recent months than in the previous year, many assume that automobilists take proportionately greater mileage. We have pointed out the increase in this column, but have been careful not to draw this inference from it. The explanation doubtless is not due to a corresponding extent. No one appears to have noted that it takes more gasoline as a rule to drive a car when it is old than when it is new; and more old cars have been on the road because replacements have been delayed. Because of this delay in buying, 1931 is expected to prove itself a better automobile selling year than its predecessor.

NEW ENGLAND MEN TO ACT ON RAIL PLANS

By FRANK E. GALLOUN

Two New England men will pass upon railroad consolidation and other carrier problems as they appear before the Interstate Commerce Commission this week.

Ezra Brainerd, Jr.
Director of Research

They are Ezra Brainerd, Jr., director of research of the commission, and Joseph B. Eastman of Boston and the other is Ezra Brainerd, Jr., present director of research of the commission, a native of Vermont. There is disappointment, Mr. Brainerd specialized in railroad rate and bank in law. The commission looked the commission three years ago. Brainerd is in charge of the processing plan by which it makes a new chairman every year.

The four-system plan for the East, excluding New England, will be before the commission. If they up as many think they will, they must abandon their own pan for a fifth system. Commissioners Tate, Lee and Mahaffie are now appointees since the five-system plan was devised. Further, as the I. C. C. has been stating frankly that its proposals in connection with railroad consolidations were of the tentative sort.

Another issue in the recessional list for part of today's session was United Corp. It was made public that for financing its bank loans of $15,000,000 as of December 31, since the financing next exists and that cost of the money involved could not be duplicated. Nor have any definite steps been contemplated for obtaining additional working capital by sale of securities. With its sponsorship arising from the highest banking organizations, it is able to borrow for current needs on the lowest rates obtainable.

Eventually, United Corp. will be in the market for additional funds through issuance of securities, but it is most likely that that time will be governed by a satisfactory seasonally market for its purpose, and also by definite plans for renewed activity in its operations.

Vanadium Steel's Dividend Outlook

New attacks are being made against Vanadium by bear traders and others who fought efforts to advance the stock a week or 10 days ago, when certain interests were credited with attempting a demonstration against an extended short interest in the stock.

Earnings of the company for 1930 are likely to be disappointing and only slightly in excess of the $3.40 basic annual dividend rate. For that reason, considerable speculation has been heard as to what action will be taken by the directors at their meeting next week.

Up to the present time, leading officials have ate open mind on the subject. They have not reached a decision as to what recommends may be made to the directors, but it is known that several members of the board are strongly in favor of the stock's continuing the rate

"Conditions, however, are sufficiently close to 'normal to warrant judicious expenditures for the necessities and comforts of life. We have weathered successfully another depression and can look with confidence to 1931 for the continued progress of American industry."

United Fruit Co., of which Victor M Cutter of Newton is president, reports today for 1931 net income of $12,411,507 after all charges and estimated taxes, equal to $4.24 a share on 2,925,100 shares of no par stock This compares with net in 1929 of $17,922,992, or $6.78 a share on 2,623,700 shares then outstanding, and net of $20,004,343, or $8.24 a share on 2,500,000 shares in 1929.

President Cutter says

"Charges for depreciation included in the 1930 operating expenses amounted to $4,013,535.

"Certain classes of property have experienced such changes in value in the past few years that it has been thought wise to write down additional amounts against property accounts, in certain cases, to write off substantially the whole amount at which they stand upon the books of the company. This results in a direct charge to surplus of $3,576,531.

"As an added protection against further changes in value in sugar or other properties, a special reserve of $7,000,000 has been set up and charged to surplus, making the total direct charges $13,576,531.

"Appropriations have been made this year to the sum of $5,196,357 for capital expenditures during 1931. In addition there remain unexpended appropriations previously made in the sum of $6,635,729 for work now in progress.

"Cumulative series substantially all of its own insurance and has an insurance fund of $10,000,000 invested in United States Government securities.

"Sugar and other products are carried at market value as of Dec. 31, 1930. Inventories of materials, supplies and merchandise for sale are based on cost. These stocks are kept at a minimum consistent with the requirements of the business.

"Two new 16-knot turbo-electric refrigerator ships of 6000 gross tons each have been added to the fleet. One of the older vessels has been equipped with turbo-electric propulsion, increasing her speed and efficiency. Thirteen ships acquired from the Cuyamel Fruit Co. have been added to company's service.

"During the year company was awarded three contracts for ocean mail service under the Merchant Marine Act of 1928. Pursuant to these contracts six new combination refrigerator, cargo and passenger ships are under construction in American yards for service in 1931. Estimated cost of these ships is $21,150,000, of which approximately 75 per cent will be lent to company by the United States Government.

"The business depression during the year adversely affected freight and passenger business. Notwithstanding this, the fleet carried 69,004 passengers, 904,838 tons of general cargo and 239,033 bags of mail, in addition to transporting 1,468,194 tons of company fruit and other products.

"The radio department has inaugurated a new station at Panama City. The Boston station has been removed to Hingham, and has been thoroughly modernized. During the year the radio department handled approximately 34,000,000 words, an increase of 4,000,000 words over 1929."

BOSTON STOCK PRICE TREND IS LOWER

Old Colony Railroad reflected the tone shown by some of the "Big Board" carriers, on stock sales all prior changes, including depreciation of $4,548,396, or the equivalent of $5 per share on 907,000 common shares, the average outstanding during the period. For the 1929 calendar year New England Power earned $5.25 per share on 959,731 shares, $4.04 on 836,500 shares in 1928; $3.37 on 761,410 shares in 1927 and $3.34 on 592,765 shares in 1926.

At the end of September, last, New England Power had outstanding 902,581 common shares, of which 87 per cent were owned by International Hydro-Electric System.

New England Power Association now owns or controls plants and sites in excess of 600,000 h. p. of hydro-electric power, of which 457,300 h p is installed or under construction. In addition, it owns or controls steam plants with capacity of 473,000 h p.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State Streeters believe the outlook for the mill shares to be brighter than at any time in the past five years. Boston-listed Pacific Mills is said to be under active consideration by the directors of the company. This buying is reported as founded on the action of the company in paying off bank loans and in reducing the stock to the liquidating value of the common stock to be around $50 per share.

In spite of predictions that the bond market could absorb a billion dollars in new issues before March 4, Boston dealer says that new offerings are coming too fast. According to this observer, in his house, large buyers are turning down good issues without examination, and commercial banks are not allowed time to take stock of their condition and "catch their breath."

* * *

The market is disappointing as State Street traders expected a little tendency to dry up on the rallies as well as on the setbacks. Actually observers contend that the market as dull as this one is too sensitive to unexpected news and they are watching every move closely. Until a definite trend has been established they do not care to assume the risks of making commitments on either side.

Brokers who follow the affairs of American Telephone feel that the strength of the stock rests on reports of new financing is ill advised. In their opinion any funds sought from the public will be solicited through the subsidiary corporation, New York Telephone Co. They recall that Chairman Gifford stated that this new issue will eventually replace the outstanding New York Telephone 6s of 1941 that are callable in October of this year.

Fisk Rubber Note Deposits Sought

Immediate deposit of five-year 5½ per cent sinking fund gold notes of the Fisk Rubber Co., for which receivers have been appointed, is requested in a notice issued today by the protective committee headed by Theodore G. Smith.

Noteholders are urged to deposit with the Central Hanover Bank & Trust Co. at its principal office, or with the National Shawmut Bank of Boston. Notes must be accompanied by coupons which matured Jan. 1, 1931.

Advance Is Resumed in the Bond Market

New York, Jan. 15—The bond market had no competition from new financing today and, resumed its advance. Volume showed a tendency to expand and bidding for corporate domestic issues, especially railroad, obligations improved. Liberty 4¼s made another new peak for a two-year period and the treasury 3¼s of 1940-43 surpassed the 1930 high.

North American Units to Spend $51,000,000 in 1931

Expenditures of $51,000,000 during 1931 by its subsidiaries for additional service facilities was announced by Frank L. Dame, president of the North American Company. This budget, Mr. Dame stated, signifies the company's policy of maintaining existing plants and distribution systems at the highest efficiency and to provide additional facilities to meet future demands that has not been effected by lessened industrial activity.

The program provides for extensions and additions to be completed this year or in progress for completion during 1932. It continues or supplements work carried out during 1930 with the expectation of consistent growth of territories notwithstanding business declines, Mr. Dame declared.

Next year's plans follow the expenditure of $70,000,000 by subsidiaries during 1930, with the exception of the California companies which contributed to the Pacific Gas & Electric. These concerns in 1929 spent $45,192,052. Detailing the program this year, Mr. Dame continued:

"In order to take advantage of weather conditions, particularly on the large hydro-electric development on the Osage river in Missouri, certain work originally scheduled for 1931 was advanced, with the result that expenditures in 1930 exceeded earlier estimates.

"Acceleration of this work, as well as of the construction of the new steam electric generating plant at Ashtabula, O., of additions to Lakeside plant of Milwaukee and of new buildings at Washington, D. C., largely increased the employment of labor and gave the companies the advantage of lower prices of materials.

"Major construction programs during 1931 include the completion of the Osage hydro-electric development, the addition of a generating unit to the Benning plant at Washington, and the beginning of work on the new Port Washington plant in Wisconsin.

"Other expenditures will be for extensions to electric and gas distributing systems in the various territories, gas plant additions in Wisconsin and the Mississippi river area, and transportation improvements in Milwaukee and Washington."

Utilities Co. Stock Dividend Increased

Dividend rate on the common stock of Central and South West Utilities Company has been increased from 5 to 6 per cent per annum, payable in common stock, it was announced by James F. Dewey, president.

This increase will be effective with the common stock dividend payable April 15, 1931, to stockholders of record on March 31, 1931. Central and South West Utilities Company is a part of Middle West Utilities System.

Standard Gas Plans Issue of $10,000,000

"In order to take advantage of weather conditions, particularly on the large hydro-electric development on the Osage river in Missouri, certain work originally scheduled for 1931 was advanced, with the result that expenditures in 1930 exceeded earlier estimates.

Rights will be issued to company's common stockholders of record at close of business on Jan. 26, 1931.

PORT OF BOSTON IN REVIEW

By JAMES J. DELANEY

With the ceremony of swearing in Miss Anne C. M. Tillinghast as United States Commissioner of Immigration, the opening of the new executive office in the recently enlarged Federal Immigration Station in East Boston will be held.

This was announced by Mrs. Tillinghast yesterday as she stated that she had received official notification from President Hoover that her reappointment for a second term of four years to her present position, she is the only woman in the country holding such an office.

"I will do everything in my power to merit the confidence which has been placed in me by President Hoover," Mrs. Tillinghast stated, "and I shall continue to conduct my office in the future as I have in the past, standing for a strict and impartial enforcement of the laws."

Mrs. Tillinghast was appointed to her post on January 27, 1927.

FROZEN SMELTS

Popular demand around Boston for Canadian frozen smelts brought two more large loads to the Fish Pier. The importation comes in three grades, extra quality quality No. 1 and quality No 2. From New Brunswick, N. B., some 2187 boxes and from Bathhurst, N. B., comes 1741 boxes.

SIGNAL CHANGE

Fog-bound vessels can now determine their distance from the lighthouse or lightship whose signals they hear through the fog, according to a new method of sending out fog warning signals, which has been devised by the United States lighthouse service, details of which have not been made public. Two years of government experimenting, both at the Virginia Capes and on the Great Lakes, have accomplished the results sought. The new signal service will be made a regular part of the work of the lighthouses before the spring, according to present plans.

KENT A CALLIER

Converted into a collier at a cost of $200,000, the S. S. A. L. Kent, of the Mystic Steamship Co., came to Boston for the first time in her new capacity bringing 8800 tons of coal for discharge at the Everett Coke works. Formerly owned by Crowell & Thurlow, she was changed from a general cargo carrier at the Maryland Drydock Co., Baltimore, plant. She was built at Bath in 1920.

BATTLE HURRICANE

Navigating officers were on the verge of collapse when the S. S. Jacob Maier-s, Danish steamer came into this port after a battle against the elements which kept them at work from the time they left Grangemouth, Scotland on Christmas night. Gales were found for 18 of the days and the ship flooded over her decks most of the time. The worst weather was experienced in the northwestern hurricane swooped over the ship in mid-Atlantic

Echo

The time which elapses between the utterance of a sound and its return must be more than one-twelfth of a second to form an echo. The whispering gallery at St. Paul's in London is an example of an indoor echo.

This Day in Our History

The first locomotive for actual use was completed at Peter Cooper's iron works near Baltimore, January 15, 1831. People at first thought smoke from the engine would blacken and ruin wool of sheep in the pastures.

Girl Worried When Dad 'Yells' at Her

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

BEATRICE FAIRFAX will gladly answer questions regarding heart and home problems. Address her in care of the Boston American. Write on one side of the paper only. If you wish a personal answer enclose self-addressed, stamped envelope, otherwise, questions of interest will be answered through her daily columns.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Please advise a discouraged girl what to do. I am at the breaking point. Whenever I hear screaming or yelling, beast or man, I think it is meant for me. I have a grouchy, irritable father, who yells instead of talking. When I do anything wrong, I'm not corrected, but am yelled at by someone who likes to kiss the latest cuss words. I think more of my father and mother than I can express, but who could understand a father that never spoke kindly or shows that he loves me.

Beatrice Fairfax

I really try to do the right thing after I have been corrected, but then I lose all heart. Every time I am corrected I end up crying.

R. M.

Dear J. M.: Your father is probably not aware of his unfortunate habit, and would be much surprised if he knew how it affected your peace of mind. It's pretty difficult for a girl to question her father's privileges around his own home, even that of "yelling," but if you told him tactfully that it was making you ill and nervous—as I see it is—he might try to control his harsh manner of speaking to you.

She Had No Confetti

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Tonight was my first experience in really falling in love, but the boy acted rather queer toward me. About a week ago, I met him at the roller skating rink and he watched me all the time. Last Thursday night I saw him again, and he did the same thing. One of the girls with whom he skated told me he asked questions about me.

Tonight at our carnival the boy was there, and so was I. He came over twice near me and asked me for some confetti but, as I didn't have any, he walked away. I caught him different times watching me, but he didn't ask me to dance. Before this, I danced with a poor dancer and could not get along very well. Do you think he imagined I was a poor dancer and wouldn't dance with me or didn't want to? He danced very little but always with some of the "wild" girls. Should I show in my actions I like him, or should I ignore his unsettling looks, and let him worry about the matter?

R. M.

Dear R. M.: Let the young man do a little of the worrying about getting better acquainted. In my humble opinion, it seems that you're making sufficient progress and—friendships that spring up too suddenly, like Jack's beanstalk in the fairy tale, have a way of disappearing as quickly. If he danced only with "wild" girls at the carnival, are you sure he's the type of young man whose acquaintance you want to cultivate?

He Drinks and Breaks His Word

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I must come to you for a little advice. I am a widow, my husband has been dead over two years and I am in love with a very nice man whom I think the world of, but he has one bad fault, he will get drunk. I have begged him not to drink and he will promise me he won't, and then will turn against his own word, and yet he claims he loves me. I have come to you to ask if I should give him up. He is 31 and I am 24 years of age.

BLUE EYES.

Dear Blue Eyes: I would as soon advise you to stand in the path of a locomotive as to marry a man of the type you describe. He promises you not to drink and doesn't enough backbone to keep his word. After he had married you, he would think less of keeping promises than he does now. Just go to a domestic relations court some morning and listen to the evidence of drunkards' wives. "As you value your own peace of mind, please don't marry this man.

What's in Fashion?

Better Looking Sheets

Directed by AMOS PARRISH

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—No longer do you have to sleep on linen sheets to be considered swank!

For if swank depends on sheets and pillow cases, there are dozens of kinds that are just as ritzy as any of the vaunted linens.

Percales, for instance. They feel justine smooth and cool as a linen sheet. And they're much less expensive. And, besides, they are a little more expensive than muslin sheets, but the longer wear they give makes up for the few added cents.

And as for muslin sheets—they can have a luxurious look these days if you want them to. Because you can have them decorated with hemstitching, embroideries and monograms as elaborate as you please.

Long Sheets Practical

The plain white sheet is still the most-in-fashion one. Because, of course, more of those are used than any others. Longer lengths of these are more popular than they used to be, too. Because folks find they like the extra length to tuck in snugly round the mattress.

Hemstitched hems can now be had in almost any price sheet. And it's a neat, good-looking, conservative trimming.

But if you want something less conservative . . . something even more decorative . . . there are plenty of fancier sheets to choose from. None of them, of course, the important fashion that the simpler sheet is. But fine for guest room use.

Monograms Smart

These monograms, by the way, are one of the smartest decorations you can have on your sheets. But though they are important looking, they are quite simple in design. At least, the most-in-fashion ones are. Straight letters, block designs and simple script are favorites.

Still more elaborate sheets have mosaic inserts of fine laces or Italian embroideries in a border design.

When it comes to colored sheets, there are fashions galore. The simplest, of course, is the sheet of plain color with an ordinary hem. Next simplest is the white sheet with a colored hem. And third is the two-color sheet—one solid color with a contrasting color border. These are usually made to order in special combinations to ensemble with blankets.

One interesting variation of the white sheet with colored border is the one with a colored design in the border. Conventionalized flowers and birds are two patterns that make a sheet unusual.

Then a white sheet with colored border and hemstitched hem. Next a colored border in a bird design. And below a simple conventional embroidered design that might be either white or colored.

Spoon Used With the Sherbet

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. When tomato juice is served in a tall glass as a sort of cocktail before the dinner, is it correct to drink it?

2. When an ice or sherbet is served with the meat course of a dinner is it correct to eat it with the dinner fork, or was the little spoon that is sometimes served with it?

3. Is it good taste to have hand-written calling cards?

L. W.

1. Yes. Usually a piece of lemon is served on the side of the under glass, or under the container with the glass, and, after you have squeezed some of the lemon in the cocktail, if you wish, and have perhaps added some salt, if you wish, you drink the cocktail.

2. It is better to use the spoon that is usually served with the sherbet.

3. No. Unless we can have properly engraved visiting cards it is better not to have any. And really, you know, visiting cards are not as expensive as we often think they look. For the first engraving we have to have a plate made, of course, but the cards engraved from this plate are inexpensive, one or two cents apiece, and we can use the plate many times.

Introducing One's Mother-in-Law

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I would like to know the correct way to introduce my mother-in-law to my friends, should I introduce her as my mother-in-law or as my mother, when my own mother is living. MISS G.

This depends on the love you have for her. If you feel toward her as "another mother," then she would, I am sure, be glad to have you refer to her as "mother." Many married women do this, and it does sound more charming, we must must agree, than the cold "in-law" that the word "mother."

Or, if you prefer, you might use the word "mother" with her last name . . . this is often done. Sometimes, too, a married woman introduces her mother-in-law like this: "Mary, do you know John's mother?" or "Mrs. Allan, this is John's mother."

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on etiquette submitted by readers.)

Seasoning Secrets of a Famous Chef

By MARTHA LEE

Organizer and Conductor of New England's Largest Housekeepers' Club of Over 37,000

"HOW CAN I ever be a good cook?" wails Mrs. Newlyde, echoed by the pleas of Mr. Newlyde's husband, and the answer is simply, "Experiment and keep on experimenting."

Those fortunate misses and mistresses allowed them to learn the art of bread and pie and doughnut making in their tender years can hardly believe that there are thousands of young married women who would be as much at sea with a recipe for Baltimore

To be sure, they

Martha Lee

Cake or Curried Chicken as a country boy in the wilds of New York, but such is the unhappy truth. But after all, cooking is largely a matter of learning a few basic principles and then trying and trying again—until things come out right.

It is this willingness to keep on trying in the face of failure that produces a good cook, according to Prunnole Guillot, chef of the Hotel Astor of New York, where for many years the epicures of Broadway and the world have gathered to enjoy Chef Guillot's dishes.

It is not possible to lay down any rule of thumb for the use of the more highly spiced seasonings, or to say just what part each one plays in making our foods more appealing, but they do play an important part, and if you are willing to experiment, using common sense and experience as a guide you will find yourself achieving surprising effects, as well as gaining a local reputation for good cooking.

Sauces for glazing while cooking add to the flavor and appearance of the finished roast, in many cases. Boil together one cup of sugar, ½ cup of water, 2 tbsps. lemon juice, until the sugar is dissolved. Add ½ tsp. of Tabasco sauce, and 1 tbsp. of tomato ketchup, one-fourth tsp. of Worcestershire sauce, and one tbsp. beef extract.

Brush this sauce frequently over the body of a roasting fowl, and it gives the bird a fine glaze and flavor, improving the appearance and taste. Roast lamb can be given an enticing flavor by basting every 15 minutes with the following mixture: One tsp. salt, ½ tsp. sugar, 1 tsp. mustard, 1½ tbsps. garlic vinegar, and 6 tbsps. of salad oil. This imparts a delicate zest to the rather flat lamby taste, which is very enjoyable.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

APPETIZING AND ECONOMICAL TRIPE

For 5 or 6 people, get ½ lb. of pickled honeycomb tripe. Soak in fresh water for 2 hours and drain. Wrap in towel until ready to use. Make a batter of about 1 cup flour, 1 or 2 eggs, well beaten, little salt and about ½ cup milk or water, or of consistency of good thick batter. Fry on both sides in bacon drippings for about 15 minutes or 20 on hot top of a fire. Mrs. Ida Standish, 73 Rockingham ave., Malden.

BAKED HAM WITH CORN DODGERS

2 cups milk
2 eggs
Pepper
2 cups corn meal
1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. fat
1½ cups boiling water
Frying medium

If ham is too salty, instead of putting it to soak in cold water, try just placing it in boiling hot water for 5 minutes and it's much richer. Then put it in baking pan after rubbing with flour and turn over milk. Bake slowly, turning over occasionally until milk is absorbed and ham begins to brown. Remove to hot platter and sprinkle with pepper. For the dodgers, mix meal and salt and turn over the boiling water. Stir in the fat, beat smooth and let cool. Bring bacon fat, or whatever frying medium is used, to right temperature and drop in mush in teaspoonfuls. Fry crisp and arrange around ham. Decorate with parsley.—Miss G. Claven, 30 Caughey st., Waltham.

FRENCH TOAST WITH PINEAPPLE

Sift together 1 cup flour, ½ tsp. salt, 1 tsp. baking powder. Add 1 cup milk and 2 well beaten eggs; beat well. Dip round slices of bread in batter and fry in hot fat. Dust with sugar and top with a slice of pineapple. Garnish with jelly.—Alice Severance, 3 S. Maple ave., Bradford.

CREAMED CHIPPED BEEF AND POTATOES

Slice cold boiled potatoes. Butter baking dish and put layers of potatoes, then layers of chipped beef, until dish is ¾ full. Then cover with white sauce and sprinkle with paprika, and put in oven to warm potatoes through. —Mrs. C. Py, Jr., Beverly.

COMBINATION OF FLAVORING

A drop or two of orange, lemon or rose on sugar tablets for tea. Strawberry or raspberry in pink colored cakes.

Rose and almond in sponge cake. Maple or almond in chocolate cake. Lemon in chocolate cookies. Almond in gingerbread. Pineapple in cocoanut cake or icing. Wintergreen in icing for chocolate or spice cake. Lemon and raspberry in cornstarch pudding. Pineapple and vanilla in cornstarch pudding. Almond and vanilla in whipped cream for chocolate pudding. Strawberry in orange gelatin. Mint or peppermint in lemonade or orange. Onion extract replaces scraping an onion. Celery extract, too, in soups, sauces and meats.—Mrs. Ina Potter, 21 Carmel st., Chelsea.

Requested Recipes

POTATO FUDGE CAKE (Mrs. E. J. F.)

Cream 1 cup butter and add very gradually 2 cups sugar. Add the yolks of 4 eggs beaten until light and 1 cup grated raw potato. Sift together 2¼ cups pastry flour, 2¼ tsps. baking powder, 1 tsp. allspice, ½ tsp. cloves and ½ tsp. cinnamon. Add to the first mixture alternately with ½ cup milk.

Add 2 squares melted bitter chocolate and ½ cup chopped almonds slightly dusted with flour. Fold in the 4 egg whites stiffly beaten. Bake slowly for one hour in a deep round cake pan (325 deg.)

Fluffy Boiled Icing

Dissolve ¾ cup granulated sugar in 1-3 cup boiling water. Let boil to the soft ball stage and pour onto 2 stiffly-beaten egg whites. Cover cake with this icing. Have ready 2 squares of melted bitter chocolate and drop it from the tip of a spoon in narrow strips 1½ inches apart across the surface of the cake. Draw a cracknife through the icing at right angles to the strips.

CARROT CAKE—(Mrs. H. S.)

1 1-2 cups sugar
1 1-2 cups cold water
1 cup seeded raisins
2 tbsps. butter or substitute
2 grated carrots (if good, size)
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. nutmeg

Put in the above ingredients in a saucepan and boil very slowly for about five minutes. Allow this to become perfectly cold before using. Then add:

1 cup walnut meats
Flour enough to make a stiff dough
Pinch of salt
2 tsps. soda

Bake very slowly in a loaf tin for about 1¼ hours. Candied citron, cherries or orange peel may be added if desired.

This is delicious and inexpensive as a fruit cake; just as good if steamed and served with pudding sauce.

I find that you must use your own judgment as to flour, because the carrots vary in size.

I do hope you all try this if you like fruit cake. I think it is the best cake recipe I ever used.

The Marry-Go-Round

Everyone Is Going "Midget"

By HELEN ROWLAND

IT TAKES pure American optimism to sit down and enjoy a picture on economy over a five-hundred-dollar radio on which the last three installments are due.

Everything's going midget now—even the radio; and Father is secretly hoping that Mother will have a midget Christmas shopping list to fit his midget income.

It's a cruel blow to a girl to pass up Prince Charming and marry what she thinks is Santa Claus, only to wake up and find herself tied to an efficiency expert on household economy.

You can't get away from the law of supply and demand. You can get a baby-crib for two or three dollars, these days, but fancy dog-baskets run up into big money.

It is about time for the man who "ticks up the ticker" in Wall Street to begin telling the children that there isn't any Santa Claus, so they needn't hang up their little stockings. HE ought to know!

One reason why our forefathers held onto their fortunes was because they made their money so slowly that nobody had a chance to take it AWAY from them before they began to live on it.

Now is the time for a wise young man to get low-down on what kind of wife a girl will make, by finding out whether she would rather have a toy diamond wrist watch for Christmas or a plain one that will merely keep time.

A young man in a Southern city kissed the wrong woman, and paid for it with a jail sentence—but most men pay for it in alimony.

"Yes, if you do I'll feel like a fool," Garson said. "If you turn out to be a regular girl you'll certainly let all the gas out of my balloon. I put on all my high pressure for a hundred grand in Kitty's behalf—and now it looks like you both are tickled to death to find each other."

Connie for the first time, smiled at him. "Well, I suppose we are glad. What's the matter with that?"

"Well, I suppose I will have to be glad too," Garson smiled back at her. "When I started talking to you I thought I had the right angle; and now I'm beginning to feel that I was all wrong. There are so many grys around here that I get out of the habit of expecting things to be on the up and up. Maybe that idea of touching you for a look roll was all wrong but it seemed like the thing to do in the beginning."

"On the contrary," Connie informed him. "Kitty has a share of her father's estate, and I'm going to see that she gets it."

Garson was studying Connie carefully.

"I believe you mean that," he said, seriously. "You're a good salesman—you changed my mind. It won't be necessary for Kitty to highjack you out of it. But I must confess, Miss Calvert, I feel little about the whole business."

Natural Sap

"Say, a guy that never changes his mind is a natural born sap!" Kitty injected. "I got a great starter, Duke. When I looked at her picture in the paper I hated her—and when I met her, she gets me. Gee, Connie—I'm glad we got together. Maybe our old man wasn't such a bad egg, after all; maybe he just didn't know how to do the right thing."

"He was spoiled by money and he was never forced to discipline himself," Connie explained. "But there was a lot of good in him; he was good to my mother and me, even if he didn't treat you and your mother right, Kitty. He couldn't have been all bad."

"Well, we can't sit up all night talking over things we don't know anything about," Duke Garson said. "I'm going to give you both my last word of advice, and then I'm through. I think you'd better go ahead with your marriage tomorrow and get in touch with Kitty when you come back from your honeymoon; then you girls can straighten up without a lot of hard feelings and trouble. And if you listen to me any longer you'd be wasting your time; I just bow myself out of the picture and let you do as you please."

"That's O. K. with me," Kitty declared.

"Can you come to my wedding tomorrow, dear?" Connie asked her, seriously.

"I'm sorry, but I can't make it. It's sweet of you to ask me, all the same."

Connie, impulsively, reached for her and gripped both her hands. "Sister dear, I'm not going to let you stay here and live like —like this. It's not right, and I'd hate myself if I didn't see that from now on you got every advantage possible out of life. I want you to come home with me now—tonight!"

It was a mad suggestion, that Kitty go home with Connie immediately. But Connie's eyes were burning, and she was vibrating with a new release of emotion.

"You can just drop everything you're doing and come on home with me," Connie announced. "You haven't had a fair chance in life, and I want to see that you get it. There's no use waiting around, either. It's too important to postpone."

The mention of her mother brought Connie up sharply. What had been in her subconscious all the time dawned with a crash. To take Kitty home and tell the whole story would be a cataclysmic shock to her mother—it would rend the whole fabric of her existence.

At this very moment Connie supposed to be asleep in her own bedroom at home—all of this was to have been kept from her mother with impetuous suddenness. Kitty was right, there were reasons why she hurried, well-intentioned plan—but they could be overcome.

But the problem, immediately, was too complicated for Connie to solve alone. She needed help—wise, understanding advice.

Jim Tracy . . .

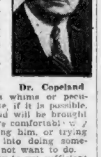
The man she was to marry came, reluctantly, into her mind. She was almost ashamed of herself that she had not thought of him sooner. It was incredible that, already, his personality had been all but obliterated by this startling revelation that had come into her life.

Milk Foundation of Health

For Youngsters and Grown Ups, Too

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

EVERY PARENT knows that the growing child needs milk. But many mothers are nearly in-



Dr. Copeland

Well, dear mothers, you have many problems, but you can always find some tactics that will work. Perhaps you agree with me it is wise to meet a child's whims or peculiarities in taste, if it is possible. The desired result will be brought about in a more comfortable way than by nagging him, or trying to force him into doing something he does not want to do.

The ideal way to get sufficient of this most nearly perfect food is by taking it in its natural state, as a beverage. But, if a child, or an adult, takes a dislike for milk as a drink, there are many ways in which the required amount can be given. It may be used in preparing dishes which make up a varied and delightful diet.

There is nothing more appealing in cold weather than delicious hot soups made with milk. Almost all vegetables can be used, first cooking them and saving the water in which they are boiled. Then they are diced and chopped finely, with milk as the real foundation. Make up soups from your child's favorite vegetables and see what effect that will have.

Oyster soup, made with milk; clam or fish chowder made with it, are most nutritious and appealing to the palate. Corn chowder is delicious when made with milk, a bit of onion, butter and salt. If you make these soups with whole milk, you are giving your family a short cut to health. You are giving your boy and girl the valuable proteins, vitamins and minerals found in the milk vegetables and sea foods.

Hard Problem

Conscience assailed her, and she decided instantly to reach Jim and share her problem dutifully with him.

"You're right—the situation is too difficult to solve all in a minute," she told Kitty. "I'll get married tomorrow that will be about enough excitement around this house for one day!"

"Oh, it is—of course. And we're leaving for a cabin's honeymoon in the Canadian Rockies."

"Well, you better run along and get a good night's sleep," Duke Garson said, tolerantly. "I'll see you tonight." Then he added, preoccupied, "I'm going to see Jim Tracy—my fiance—and put the whole thing up to him before we're married. Jim has a good head—he'll know how to work everything."

Our Part in Prosperity

Massachusetts Should Spend Freely and Wisely

Ninety prominent economists, from nearly as many colleges and universities, say it is the duty of government to lead the country back to general prosperity.

They assert President Hoover should have set up a billion-dollar program of public construction, such as Mayor Curley recommended to him, and that States and municipalities should spend in proportion to their wealth.

A country that can rush to the relief of Belgium, Japan or the Kingdom of Hedjas certainly is obligated to relieve its own people suffering the pestilence of unemployment.

A country that can appeal to private industry to build new plants and facilities that work may be supplied certainly can afford to set the good example by building up its own plant.

A country that has any confidence in its own future growth certainly can afford to justify that confidence by expanding its rivers, harbors, highways and natural resources which will be needed by its growing population.

Here, at home, Governor Ely has offered a sensible program of $20,000,000 for hospitals, highways and public buildings not entirely for the future because they are very badly needed NOW.

It must be remembered that the national government, during the war, halted practically all public works, including schools and hospitals, and that the States and cities and towns have never been able to catch up. The result is congestion—students crowded into ancient structures and patients suffering in cots in corridors and attics.

Massachusetts cannot afford to stand still. She needs these facilities, just as she requires modern highways to accommodate her own people and the millions who come to the superb playground of New England in the Summer.

Those Deadly Crossings

The Legislature's Responsibility

The State proposes to spend a million dollars a year to abolish the dangerous gradecrossings and their horrible toll of life in auto-train collisions.

The death crossing at Framingham will cost six millions to eliminate.

That will take only six years.

The death trap at Barber Grossing in Worcester will cost four millions.

At the end of ten years, it may be seen, we will be able to stick out our chests with pride; we will have eliminated two of the hundred danger spots in this State.

Perhaps some lives will have been sacrificed in the interim and personal anguish visited upon many homes.

But what of that!

We must stick to the pay-as-you-go policy of public works and construction. It is a sacred policy. The Legislature says so.

More Prohibition Farce

Woodcock's New Plans

The drys ride roughshod in Congress.

Mr. Woodcock himself reveals a fund of $250,000, spent by agents for liquor, food and whoopee. Also a fund of $160,550, paid to stool pigeons to spy upon their neighbors.

The agents will set up decoy bootlegging establishments, to sell liquor to people that are to be kept dry.

And Mr. Woodcock assures us the agents will be after the big fellows; they will not disturb the "private violators."

So, there is hope for all, even the most unregenerate.

The bank robber will say to the judge with easy nonchalance, "Oh, but you are mistaken, sir; I am a private violator."

James Comes to See

A Congressman Who's on the Job

One of America's most distinguished public servants has been in Boston and if it were left to his own modest inclination his coming and his going would hardly have been noted.

He is Mr. W. Frank James, Congressman from Michigan and Chairman of the House Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. James is that type of public official who does not content himself with signing his salary voucher, sipping tea in the Washington salons and calling it a day.

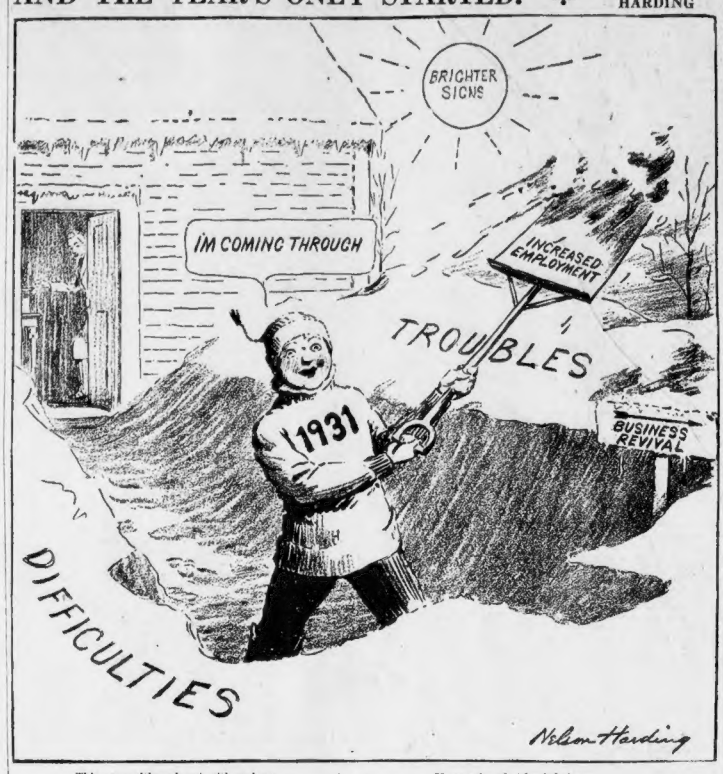
Whenever he wants any information on military matters and policies he hops into an airplane and goes to the place where the information is to be found.

He came to Massachusetts of his own accord to inspect the army air facilities in Boston and the condition of Camp Devens.

Boston will be richer for his coming because he does not require a sextant, compass, blueprints and a mass of red tape to be convinced of the desirability of expanding the Boston Airport by the acquisition of Governor's Island from the government.

AND THE YEAR'S ONLY STARTED! -:-

By NELSON HARDING



This year, although not with us long,
Has started well, is going strong.
Already his snow shovel lifts
And throws aside blockading drifts.

Uncovering that buried sign
On which the sun begins to shine.
We'll bet when this young year is done
We'll hail him "Nineteen Thirty Won!"

Listen, World! -:- Servants

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Why Do Women Scorn the Work?

THERE ARE thousands of unemployed women in England. And, strange as it may seem, there are also many vacant jobs. The unemployed women don't want them. Won't take them. Get mad when they're offered!

For the jobs are in homes. Domestic service. And those unemployed women won't enter domestic service.

They're used to hard labor. Most of them have worked in mills, factories or mines since they were children. They're accustomed to long hours, small pay, dirt, shabby clothes, hunger and cold. They're living now on meager "doles." But they indignantly refuse jobs as servants. They say they haven't come to that yet."

Elsie Robinson

"Domestic service is despised," says the Manchester Guardian, in commenting on the situation, "not so much because it means hard work for none-too-generous pay, as because of a vague, social humiliation that is associated with it."

How many of our own thousands of unemployed women will accept household jobs except as a last resort?

We've no caste system, such as virtually prevails in England. Servants, here, aren't paid starvation wages. A good housemaid, cook, or nurse can make as much—with board and lodging included—as the average stenographer. She has a better chance to save. And it's "womanly work" in an environment which women are supposed to prefer. But try and persuade your unemployed sister or daughter to accept a position in Mrs. Jones' kitchen and see what happens.

Does that seem absurd to you, as a man? Well, what's your own reaction? Would you seek a wife in Mrs. Jones' kitchen? Or prefer to "step" with a chambermaid or a secretary?

Then how do you suppose the girl herself feels about it?

Do they, in spite of sentimental tradition, dislike puttering around a house just as much as men would dislike it?

Whatever the cause—there's the condition. What to do about it? The British suggest unionization. "Domestic service is a skilled occupation," say they. "Unionize it and it will have the dignity and social recognition which other crafts have attained."

Yet, those same girls, working in mills and factories, expect supervision and submit to bosses and inspectors.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McINTYRE

New York Is Storm-Conscious

NEW YORK, Jan. 15—Few cities are so storm conscious as New York. A quick flurry will desolate streets and bring trade in shops and stores to a full stop. When dark clouds gather, the weather bureau is besieged by frantic inquiries. Foolish fear of a tidal wave has never been quelled.

At the Polo Grounds more than a year ago a sudden shower so terrorized the crowd a stampede resulted, costing several lives. A high wind is an especial horror for those convinced that one day some cloud-scraping shaft will buckle and crash to the ground.

Such towers are built to withstand the heaviest gale, and engineers say a catastrophe is impossible, but this does not allay taut nerves. Lightning creates a similar dread. Telephone calls drop to an astonishingly low level. Underground tube stations are packed with timid hide-outs.

Not in many years has lightning damaged New York mid-town, the tall spires acting as protectors. There are frequently freakish displays as bolts leap, kitten like, from tower to tower, but never damage. Yet many upper story office forces are completely prostrated until it is over.

Innumerable New Yorkers jump into feather beds and cover themselves until an electrical storm has passed. Receiving wards in hospitals always have their quota suffering what is known as "lightning hysteria," a semi-cataleptic state of stark terror.

* * *

High pressure life on the cramped isle has also developed another phobia that has attracted specialists. It is a sort of scrupulous neurosis which only flares out when its victims approach a revolving door. Three famous executives are notable examples of its sway.

They enter their buildings through side street or back entrances to avoid the whirling experience. Like lightning, the danger in revolving doors has reached the irreducible minimum. In a drunken hotel lobby riot one dawn a man's neck was broken in a revolving door. That sums up the casualties.

* * *

Nobody has suffered more acutely from stage fright than Al Jolson on opening nights. He often had to resort to sleeping potions for several days before the event, and at a half dozen premieres it was necessary to "hold the curtain" while the comedian got hold of himself. In five minutes after he appeared his calm was restored and he was ad-libbing and functioning like a machine gun.

* * *

Two young actresses on the New York stage this season have made gallant come-backs. A sort of detour on the way to oblivion. Less than four years ago they were whooping things up around Zelli's, Florence's and other Parisian hot-shots—already twitching from drink and drugs. But they are over their fling, working earnestly and living sedately.

* * *

Old lachrymose ballads are restored to favor. Night clubs feature them in the mellow hours in the effort emotionally to moisten eyes of stay-outs. In a minstrel show in our town one performance a fat tenor waddled to the footlights and warbled: "Be Kind to Your Mother. She's the Only Mother You Got." And the town drunk, in a sentimental glow, knelt reverently in the aisle and sobbed out loud.

* * *

Many of us, I believe, have longed to organize a cabal against various types of singers who have been lifted to fame on a false screech or an odd delivery in the past few years. The woods are full of them—Helen Kane, the Brox Sisters, Libby Holman, Rudy Vallee, Frances Williams, Helen Morgan, Adelaide Hall and Morton Downey. To my notion their voices are as spurious as the fat smile of a lady killer. Yet it cannot be denied each has an intangible something that grips across the footlight or over the radio. And that is what causes that clicking noise at box office windows.

Postcard from Formosa:

You'd be surprised how I can struggle along, too, without even an occasional postcard from Formosa.

Sherman Was Wrong

He Should Have Said "Peace"

General Sherman said war was hell. He never stood in a breadline in the piping times of peace.

Ask a down-and-out veteran of the last war which he prefers.

He will tell you "I'll take the war, thanks, every time."

He was a hero then, and a well-fed hero usually. Shells and bullets were not pleasant, but they were no worse than cold and hunger, and perhaps the cries of a sick wife and child at home with nothing to eat and little to wear.

Nothing was too good for you then. But apparently your Uncle Sam thinks that you should not complain now. You saved your country, lost your job, and ought to be satisfied.

Of course, Uncle Sam has given you a bonus, which will come in handy in 1945, when it is due. Meanwhile, you are told that it would be very dangerous to give you cash. You might spend your money foolishly, and besides the country needs it to enforce prohibition, or pay the Wickersham commission, or something.

Read and Weep

The Old Dollar Dinner—Gone, But Not Forgotten

Progress is a wonderful thing—one of its byproducts being the fact that it costs ten times as much to eat as it did half a century ago, and eating is no better, if as good.

"Roast canvasback duck, teal, quail on toast, roast snipe, mallard, black duck, gray duck, roast pheasant, roast venison, antelope, wild pigeon, squirrel, rabbit, turkey, goose, tame duck, roast pig, roast beef, lamb, mutton, vegetables, relishes, fruit, pastry and light wines."

For all this, or as much of it as you could hold, you paid ONE DOLLAR.

Or take the bill of fare offered by the Michigan Central Railway on its first dining car service between Detroit and Chicago. You had your choice of fifty-seven varieties of game and other meats, including broiled quail and woodcock, and a wine list headed by Mumm's extra dry.

This dinner, exclusive of wine, was 75 cents, and the highest priced wine was $4 a quart.

The only item on the menus of those days that you can get cheaper today is ice cream. It was two bits a plate then. Everything else has soared to dizzy heights—some of them so dizzy that you can't see them. Progress is a wonderful thing, as stated.

Making a Racket of It

The Emergency Officers' Compensation Scandal

The emergency officers' compensation law was never intended to be a racket.

Lacking political influence, lacking the strength of large numbers and lacking the favor of the intrenched regular Army group at Washington, they were denied for ten years the justice of their claims.

The government should never have discriminated against them because they were "emergency officers." An arm torn off by shrapnel or a lung scarred by noxious gases was, in fact, more of an economic loss to them than to the professional soldier because they were to come back to civil life handicapped to meet its inexorable competition.

But the law never intended to pay the "disability" claims of persons who barely had time to don a uniform and whose "war disabilities" do not preclude them from holding fat public jobs at large salaries.

The fault is not with the law. It is with the administration of the law. And that ought to be cleaned up for the honor of the country and for the honor of so many real soldiers among the emergency officers who would be the last to want their heroism traded upon.
